EUROPEAN YACHTING PARTY'S ADVENTURES

"Irene" Fights Through to Tsun Wan: Motor-Junk Abandoned at Lantau

KAU-SING TO THE RESCUE RYING EXPERIENCE IN STORM TWO LADIES IN PARTY

An exciting experience befell Mr. D. Stewart and a party of friends, including two ladies, who were spending the week-end in the motor junk "Au Chau Ching" in company with Mr. Sverre Berg and a party of his friends, who were in the yacht "Irene."

On Saturday night the boats anchored at Discovery Bay, Lantau Island, and all went well until yesterday morning when it was noticed, not without apprehension, that the barometer was falling and the seas rising.

It was observed that junks and sampans were hurriedly beating for shelter, and it was deemed expedient that the Au Chau Ching and Irene should proceed to more sheltered anchorage.

UNABLE TO GET OUT.
This was attempted, at noon, the junk taking the Irene in tow, but upon reaching the open sea, considerable difficulty was experienced in keeping the junk into the wind and it was necessary to return to Discovery Bay.

Anchors were again dropped, but with the weather increasing in violence, the outlook became very disquieting, and all thoughts of returning to Hongkong were abandoned in the case of the junk. But at 4 p.m. Mr. Berg, in the "Irene," decided to attempt the hazardous crossing, Mr. Stewart again towing him out.

"IRENE" MAKES TSUN WAN.
It speaks well for Mr. Berg's seamanship, that the Irene was able to make Tsun Wan after an extremely rough passage, Mr. Berg and Mr. Swales reaching Hongkong by car at shortly before 10 p.m.

Later in the afternoon, the seas appeared to abate somewhat with the turn in the tide, and two more attempts to get clear were made by the junk, but on each occasion the heavy seas compelled shelter again being sought.

KAU SING TO RESCUE.
At about 6.30 p.m. signals were heard from a motor vessel, which turned out to be the lifeboat from the "Kau Sing" which had been searching the bays in the vicinity in order to render any assistance required.

News of the party of foreigners had been wireless out to Kau Sing, and the party on the junk were transferred to the lifeboat and taken out to the Kausing some four or five miles away, the journey being unpleasantly rough.

The captain of the Kau Sing, Mr. Lowe, and Mr. Cairns, of the Harbour Department, were most solicitous, supplying dry clothing and hot drinks to all of the party, returning to Hongkong with them at 9 p.m.

Professor Raymond Moley talking with Mr. Vincent Astor, with whom he is to produce a new national weekly paper, which will become official mouthpiece of the Roosevelt Administration.

KENT PLANE TRAGEDY

BEAUVAIS MEMORIAL SEQUEL

THREE KILLED

RUSHING-TO ENGLAND

London, Oct. 1.
The dedication of the R.101 memorial at Beauvais was followed by a shocking air tragedy.

A small private aeroplane, chartered for the purpose of rushing pictures of the dedication ceremony to London, and returning to London with the photographs on board, crashed at Hawkhurst in Kent.

The three occupants of the machine were all killed, apparently instantly. The plane was a complete wreck.

THE VICTIMS.

The victims were:
Captain Styrn, the pilot, a well-known commercial aviator, who served with the R.A.F. during the war.

Mr. Ian MacGillchrist, the chairman of the British Air Navigation Company.

Mr. Bertram Wilson, the press photographer.

The dedication of the R.101 memorial earlier in the day was attended by M. Daladier, the Prime Minister of France, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's Premier, and other distinguished British and French personages. There was a crowd of over ten thousand.

Intensive search must have been carried out.

It took nearly an hour to get from the junk to the Kausing. The abandoned craft was threatening to break up under the severe buffeting it received and the rescued party were soaked through.

ROOSEVELT AND INFLATION

RELUCTANCE SHOWN IN STEPS AUTHORIZED

MONETARY POLICY NOT YET DEFINED

WASHINGTON, OCT. 1.
PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S DECLARATION OF MONETARY POLICY REMAINS UNMADE AND IT IS NOT COMING TO BE BELIEVED THAT HE IS STILL RESISTING INFLATIONARY MEASURES.

An important statement is, however, expected within the next twenty-four hours. President Roosevelt left Washington for Chicago, where the Labour Federation Convention is being held, and the fact that he was accompanied by the entire Executive and office staff is thought to portend a first-class pronouncement.

It is believed that the President is still strongly of the opinion that he can force his programme through to successful credit expansion as opposed to monetary inflation.

Official action to-day is regarded as an encouraging character. Prior to his departure for Chicago, where he will address the Convention of the American Legion, President Roosevelt gave orders that the destitute must be provided with food, clothing and fuel during the coming winter.

$700,000,000 FOR RELIEF.
The Relief Administrator, Mr. Hopkins, states that there will be nearly $700,000,000 available for this purpose.

Simultaneously, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced that a big drive is now to be undertaken in an attempt to energize industry through credit expansion by means of three per cent. and four per cent. loans to mortgage and loan companies and to banks for relending to business firms.

INFLATION DOUBTS.
This is interpreted to mean that President Roosevelt is still as reluctant as ever he was to embark upon a policy of inflation, which is tantamount to a levy on capital.

General Hugh Johnson has sent Mr. Walter Chrysler to Detroit to investigate the strikes there.

In consequence of the restlessness among the farmers over the retail price formula, Mr. Wallace, the Secretary of Agriculture, has started discussions in reference to the control of corn and hog production.—Reuter.

UNCERTAINTY.

An uncertainty continues over the monetary policy of the United States, the entire subject is constantly being reviewed by President Roosevelt and his principal advisers and it is said that even the conservatives advocated inflationary action rather than continuing uncertainty.

Mr. Roosevelt is disinclined to act toward inflation as yet, beyond freeing a large part of U.S. $3,000,000,000 representing deposits in closed banks in order to flush out the channels of national purchasing power.

Political pressure is, however, increasing in the direction of providing inflation on a much broader scale and indications are that when Congress reassembles in January the inflationists will try to compel more drastic steps.

STIMULANTS TO BUY.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt hopes that the sums to be diffused for public works, unemployment relief, paying off victims of the closed banks, and for refinancing mortgages and increasing loans to cotton and other farmers will sufficiently stimulate buying power to overcome the present pronounced lag in the recovery programme.

President Roosevelt addressing neighbours in New York City. "The downhill drift has definitely turned," he declared in a speech tinged with optimism.

PAN-ASIA OUTLOOK

CHIANG KAI-SHEK ATTITUDE

JAPAN MUST BE CAUTIOUS

A Nippon Dempo interview with General Chiang Kai-shek, published by the Osaka Mainichi quotes the General as endorsing the much-discussed doctrine of Asia for the Asiatics.

"I am glad to hear," General Chiang is said to have declared, "that many Japanese are also advocating this doctrine."

Whereas the Japanese have pictured themselves as leaders in such a movement, however, General Chiang is said to have gone on to say:

"It would be a great mistake for Japan to oppress China by military force. Furthermore, that would be against Pan-Asianism. If Japan oppresses China, we will fight to the last."

Another interesting paragraph reads:

"The report that as the result of Mr. T. V. Soong's visit to Europe and America, China would obtain the aid of western Powers to oppose Japan in the critical period of 1936, when the world political situation is likely to undergo a change, is altogether wrong. Such fear is quite unwarranted. I hope the Japanese leaders will forget any misgivings they may have on that score."

General Chiang is quoted as telling the interviewer that "China is going to secure the technical aid of the League of Nations, loans, and a supply of arms from western powers, but these things are intended simply for the unification and consolidation of the country. China cannot do more than that under the present circumstances."

VILLAGER SHOT DOWN

GRAVELY WOUNDED BY ROBBER

Shot in the head when he attempted to escape from armed robbers, Lam Chuen, living in a hut at Kap Shek Mi village, Shamshuipo, is now lying at the Kowloon Hospital between life and death.

The robbers forced their way into his hut on Saturday morning, and had remained some 10 minutes when Lam Chuen eluded them and fled through the front door. He was shot down when blowing on a police whistle for help.

The bullet entered the eye. Three men are thought to have been implicated in the robbery. The man who fired the shot had his face blackened with charcoal.

ORGANISED LABOUR IN AMERICA

Federation Making Rapid Headway

Chicago, Oct. 1.
Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labour, announced to-day that the membership of the Federation now topped the four million mark.

He predicted that it would soon be ten millions because the annual convention opening to-morrow would order an unprecedented organising campaign.—Reuter.

PLEASURE BOAT DISASTER

JAPANESE CRAFT CAPSIZES

OVER HUNDRED MISSING

RUNS INTO ROUGH WEATHER

Tokyo, Oct. 2.

A heavy loss of life is feared as the result of a tragic ending to the pleasure cruise off the coast of Kurematsu yesterday afternoon.

A small pleasure steamer capsized in rough weather and sank rapidly, the accident being attributed partly to the high seas and partly to the fact that the steamer was overloaded.

There were nearly two hundred people aboard her and up to the present only forty are known to have been saved. Twenty-two are known to have been drowned and over a hundred are missing.

The coast in the vicinity is being scoured over for survivors of the disaster but it is feared that the majority of the missing must have lost their lives.—Reuter.

CHANG HSUEH-LIANG IN SWEDEN

To Engage Officers For Gendarmerie Corps

Stockholm, Oct. 1.
Chang Hsueh-liang arrived in the Swedish capital to-day and was received by the King.

The Young Marshal later lunched with Prince Gustav Adolf, the son of the Crown Prince.

His foreign adviser, Mr. MacDonald, says that Chang Hsueh-liang is interested in the engagement of Swedish officers to form a Gendarmerie Corps.—Reuter.

A Few Testimonials from Medical Authorities respecting the curative effects of SERRAVALLO'S TONIC

In Malarial Fever:
I am pleased to give you herewith my opinion on the merits of your world-famed preparation "Serravallo's Tonic" (Cinchona and Iron Wine), which I have used personally, and have prescribed it as well, with universal satisfaction. During the last one year, I was in Medical Charge of a D. P. W. Road Construction duty in one of the most malarious quarters, here, which is called "The Kankareik-Miyunawady Road". Here the working class as well as the officers were equally suffering from this dreadful malarial and I can very boldly say that I was the only solitary being there, who never had a single chill nor a slight increase of temperature. I attribute this to your valuable tonic. The price of your Tonic Wine did not enable me to place it within the reach of one and all, but I prescribed it freely to all the officers and other well-to-do men among the working class, who soon began to realize its untellable benefits. Men who could not even swallow one morsel of food, commenced to take plenty, and even went to the extent of saying that they could not oppose their hunger with their usual supply. Pale faces soon underwent a plethoric appearance and the toneless system became more and more vigorous. To be brief, a daily use of your Tonic brought about in many, a marvellous immunity from "Malarial Fever." Now to sum up my experience, I can, without hesitation say that your "Serravallo's Tonic" is an all-round Tonic, a remarkable appetiser and a sure malarial-prophylactic. Under its influence the blood is enriched and its remarkable palatability places it on the front rank of all the other tonics of a kindred nature we have in the market.

Dr. P. M.
C.M.S. Med. Officer, Kankareik (Lower Burma).

In Enteric Fever:
I have prescribed "Serravallo's Tonic" in cases of Anemia resulting from Malarial Fever, and in convalescing cases of Enteric Fever, and have much pleasure in saying that the beneficial results from its use have been most marked, it is very palatable, and should hold its own against any of the Ferruginous Wines on the market.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Avoid Sunburn by Using Oil, Powder

By Alicia Hart

Let the woman who never has been sunburned laugh at those who have. Nobody who has experienced the pain of blistering will smile.

Why people go out and get actually blistered is difficult to understand. None of them would willingly put their hands on a stove. Yet they come home smarting and it often is days before they feel right.

If you are actually sun-burned, don't take it lightly. There are ointments for burns that are tremendously soothing. Perhaps your own pharmacy puts up its own lotion that looks like calamine which you paint over your burned arms and legs to relieve them immensely. Certainly you should do something right away about it.

The very best way to treat sunburn is to avoid it. That can be done nicely, if you take a little trouble. Use one of the oils, compounded to protect the skin from burning, before you start. Dust powder over it before you leave. The powder is additional precaution. You can get a sun tan nicely through the oil and powder. But you won't burn so easily. Wear a big hat or don't stay too long in the glaring sun.

Some women simply can't get a suntan. Often the fairest, most delicate skin merely burns and peels, neither staying long in its beauty. I might say those having such delicate skins or skins affected that way should learn by experience that it is much better to be comfortable than stylish, and stay out of excessive sun.

YOUR CHILDREN

Sun Baths for Infants
Should Be
"Prescribed" by the Doctor

By Olive Roberts Barton

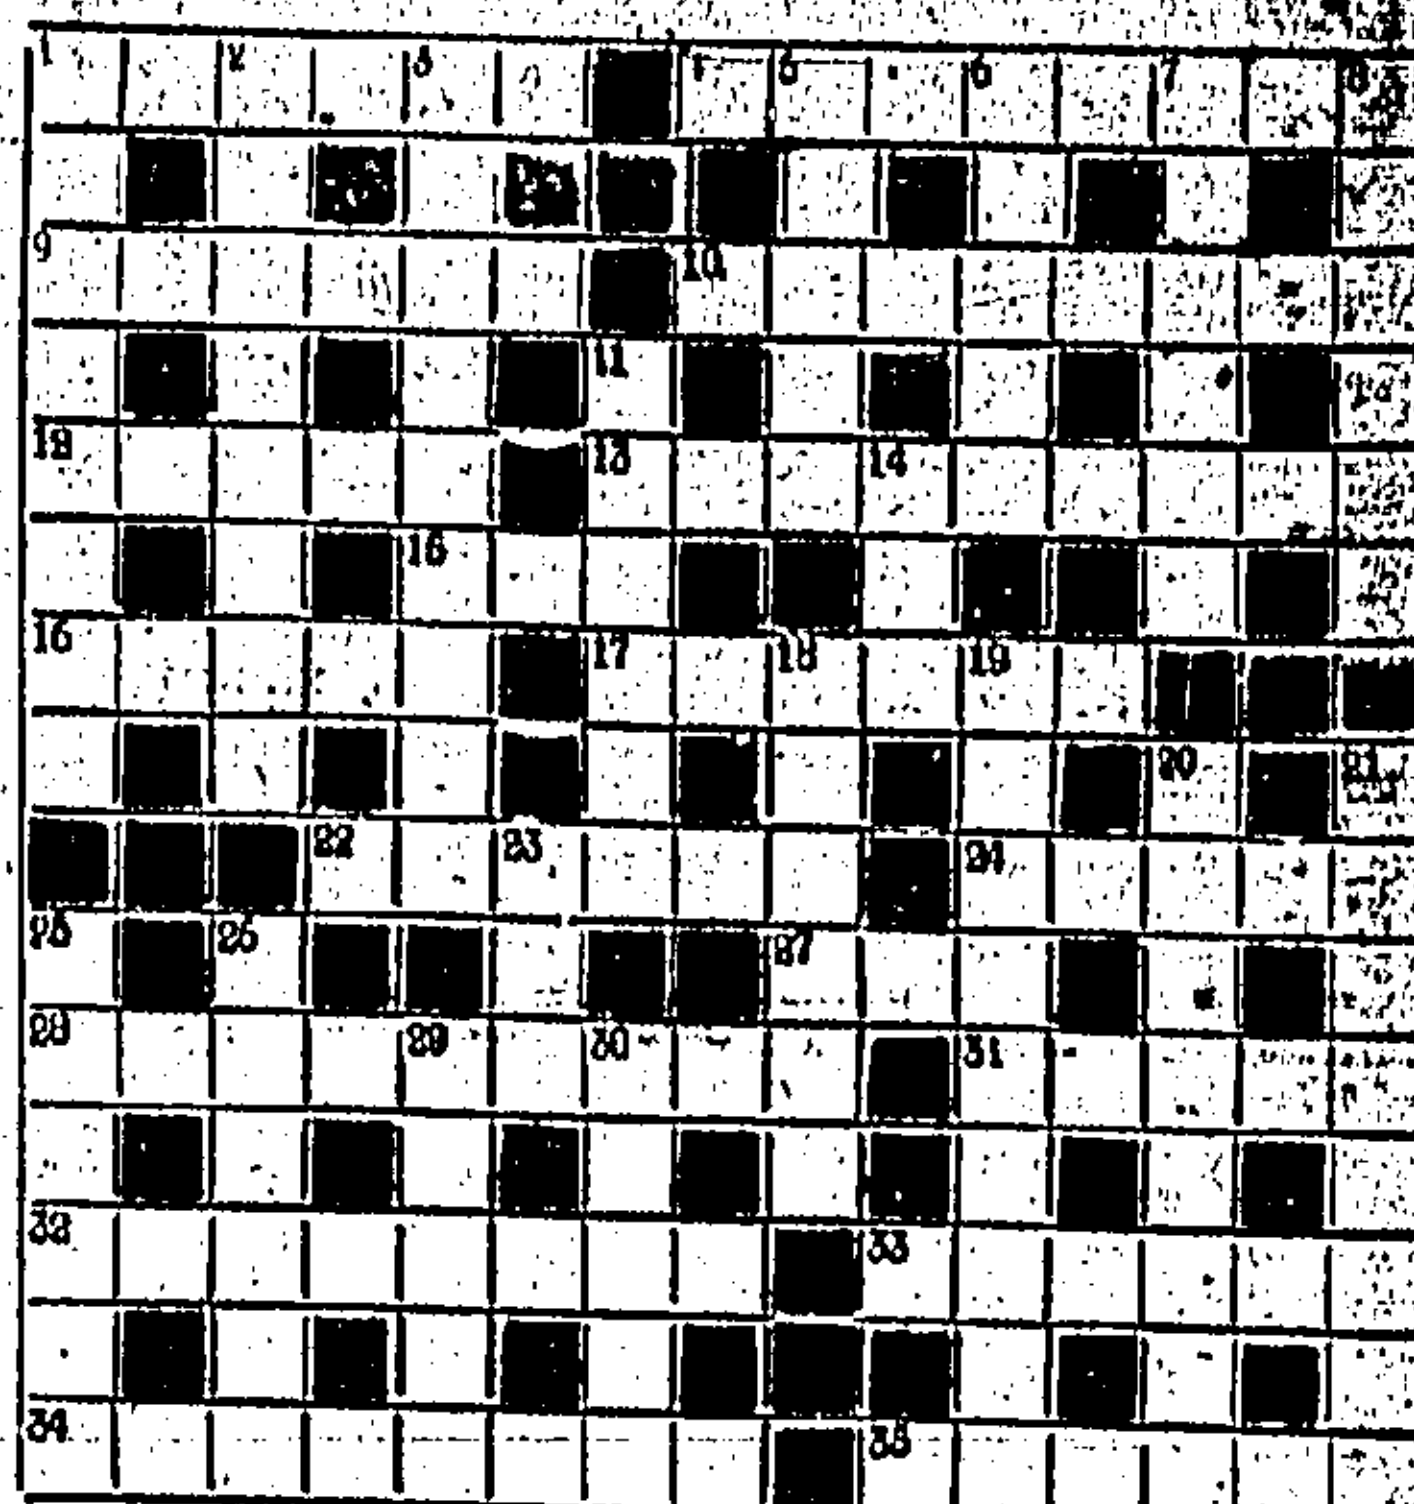

What every mother needs to do is to try to keep herself and her children well and as comfortable as possible in the hot weather. These are the days when the children are far better off inside the house than out of it. If they do play outside, let it be mornings. And if they must be in the sun, put on hats.

Sun by Prescription
Too much sun-bathing is not good for children. There is no use going to extremes and getting faddy about it. Sun should be the doctor's business, especially where it concerns babies, and it should be "prescribed" just as medicine is prescribed. You cannot go guessing too much, especially in extremes of weather. Perhaps on medium warm days the long bath doesn't do much damage, but this should be remembered—before eleven in the morning and after three or four o'clock in the afternoon are the best times, not in the middle of the day.

Children old enough to trot around do not stay in the sun continuously as a rule. They are out and in and get their sun in broken doses.

Keep House Cool
But hats are best. The rest of the clothes do not matter. Tempers are short. Children say and do things on hot days they do not mean. We can do a lot of overlooking at such times. It is the best way.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XXXVI

The nerve-racking day following Dick's departure was over at last. Eve had worked an hour after closing time. Wearily she made her way to the wash room.

Miss Gordon, the coat buyer, was there before her, vigorously cleansing her face with soap and water. Eve felt guilty, remembering the costly error in the advertisement of the spring coat sale.

But Sadie Gordon greeted her cheerfully. "Don't tell me one of you pampered office girls has had to work overtime!" she scoffed amiably. "I thought that never happened to anyone except us slaves behind the counters."

"It happens about four times a week to the girls in our office," Eve returned. "What do you mean pampered? That word isn't in the dictionary of a department store executive."

"Isn't that the truth?" agreed the other. "It's hard work, all right, but I like it just the same. Maybe that's because it's all I know. When I was 14 I was a stock girl at Rosenblum's. And I've been through the whole works—wrapper, errand girl, saleswoman, assistant buyer and now—after 20 years—a buyer. My first salary was $2.50 a week. It wasn't easy in those days. I was the oldest of eight children and all I ever got from my pay envelope was car-fare. I carried my lunch from home, done up in a newspaper. A sandwich and homemade cookies, maybe, and an apple. Likely as not we'd have nothing but potato soup for supper. But it was good potato soup! Plenty of milk in it and tiny egg dumplings."

"My mother was wonderful. I hate to think how hard she worked for us. My father worked hard, too, but always for small wages. He never got ahead—never had a business of his own. That was a great disappointment to my mother. But he didn't care about running a business. All the time he could have to himself he would play on his violin."

"He was a tailor and my mother made him teach his trade to my three brothers. They had her business head and they made good. Started a little shop in a rickety old building on a side street. Now they own Gordon's on the avenue—Gordon's Tweeds, you know. They could outfit the Prince of Wales himself!"

"Gordon's? But I thought—I've heard—"

"Eve began, then broke off in embarrassment. "That Gordon's is owned by the Koveleski brothers?" Sadie finished the sentence for Eve matter-of-factly. "Well, it is. Abe and Sol and Ben. My name is Koveleski too but my mother thought we should have an American name in business."

"It's funny about names," Miss Gordon went on. "Our old country name wasn't good enough for a first class clothing store or for Bixby's coat buyer but it was just right for Abe's Lina when she turned out to be a real violinist."

"Lina—Lina Koveleski?" Eve repeated in amazement. "Not—not THE Koveleski, the famous girl violinist?"

"Sure," returned Sadie Gordon calmly. "Why not? She could carry a tune before she could walk and she was playing in public at four. She can make a violin speak—our Lina can! And she's a good girl, always thinking up some little surprise for her mother and father. I used to think it was foolish—the money Abe paid out for lessons for that child. But he always said she would make good and she has. But here I go, bragging about Lina, and your husband waiting down at the side door to take you to dinner."

At this mention of Dick doubt and loneliness again overwhelmed Eve. "He isn't waiting to-night," she sighed. "He left yesterday for the Adirondacks. He's on a new job there," she went on, encouraged by Sadie Gordon's unexpected friendliness. "He'll be gone for a year—longer, perhaps. He's superintending a big construction job—some hospital buildings."

"You'll be leaving us before long then."

The certainty in Miss Gordon's voice irritated Eve. "Oh, no! I'm not leaving," she returned spiritedly. "I'll go on with my work here. We're modern—my husband and I. We started our marriage on a 50-50 basis. It has always seemed to me that a woman's career is just as important as a man's."

"Sounds grand, dearie, but the arrangement doesn't always work out as you expected. If I were you I'd chuck this job and follow that handsome husband to the wilds before it's too late—even if I had to live in a tent and eat canned salmon and baked beans three times a day. It isn't safe to be so careless with a husband these days! Too many lady pirates cruising about the sea of matrimony."

"This career business is all right while you're young and ambitious but by the time you're my age you'll probably learn nothing is as important in a woman's life as a home, a husband and two or three youngsters to work and plan for. I can see that now—when it's too late! Maybe it'll be too late when you see it. Believe me, dearie, by the time a woman is 50 it isn't a big name for herself or a big salary that seems important—not when she's facing a lonely old age."

"Toll you what," the brisk, kindly woman went on as they descended long flights of stairs to the street (the elevators having stopped for the day), "why not come home with me to dinner—if you haven't any special plans for the evening? I'll get something at the delicatessen at the corner and make some of that potato soup I was telling you about. It would be a real kindness to me! It never seems worth while to cook a hot meal for myself and yet I do get tired of restaurant food."

Eve accepted the invitation gladly. They stopped at the delicatessen shop and while Miss Gordon bought half a roast chicken, greens for salad, a small cheese cake and rolls, Eve selected a box of candy as her contribution to the little feast.

Miss Gordon lived in a large apartment house just off the avenue. The building, convenient to her work, was in a neighbourhood no longer considered fashionable. This factor, which seemed important to Eve, apparently gave Miss Gordon no concern.

"I've lived here for 15 years," she said as though in answer to Eve's unspoken thought. "I could afford a better place now, of course, but I'm used to this and it seems too much bother to move. I know what you're thinking—that if you were in my place you'd call a second-hand man, get rid of this ugly furniture and take one of those swanky new apartments on the Heights where everything is done merely by turning an electric switch. Well—I think I like this better!"

Eve, setting the table and preparing the salad while her hostess peeled potatoes and put them on to boil, found herself telling Sadie Gordon about Mrs. Brooks' old house with its great trees and attractive garden and how Dick had turned its dinginess into beauty with hammer, nails and a paint brush.

"I'd hate dreadfully to leave now," she admitted, "though I thought the place was impossible at first."

"This potato soup is delicious," she assured her hostess when they were seated at the cheerful table.

Miss Gordon beamed at this praise and gave Eve detailed directions for making the soup. "You can surprise your husband with it some evening," she said.

"Oh, I don't have much time for cooking," Eve confessed. "Dick gets home first—or did when he was here. He usually had dinner nearly ready by the time I reached home. Now that he's gone I suppose I'll eat out most of the time."

"Listen, dearie! It looks to me as though you've picked the world's wonder for a husband. Not many men would go home at night and cook dinner! Don't be foolish and let some other girl vamp him away from you. Why don't you tell Earle Barnes you've got a new job

WORLD CRISIS

A WAY OUT

By FREDERICK COPE, A.M.I.E.E.

Mr. Cope's striking articles on the world economic crisis which were recently published in the Hongkong Telegraph are now available in pamphlet form.

One of the features, repaying study, is the close similarity between the plan of reform suggested by this local writer, and certain aspects of the Roosevelt recovery programme. The author's ideas are naturally far too advanced for active promotion at the present time, but they are particularly interesting in view of the fact that President Roosevelt, in striking out on a path of his own, has travelled in the same direction.

The pamphlet is one of forty-four pages and can be obtained from the South China Morning Post at a cost of—Educated at the City of London School and Caius College, Cambridge, he became classical lecturer at Newnham College in 1887, and was appointed Professor in Latin at University College, Cardiff, in 1893.

In succession he became Hulme Professor of Latin at the Victoria University of Manchester (1903), Lecturer in Classics, Harvard University (1927), Wilding Lecturer in Christchurch College, Canterbury, New Zealand (1928), Charles Eliot Norton Lecturer to the American Institute of Archaeology (1930), Special Lecturer, University College of Wales (1931), Classical Lecturer to the University of Southern California in Los Angeles (1932), and Hilbert Lecturer (1932).

He became a Fellow of the British Academy in 1927, President and Trustee of the Classical Association in the same year, Hon. Foreign Member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and Governor of the British Institute of Florence.

A publicist of note, his works number over 50, most of them dealing with the subjects with which he was associated during his brilliant career.

Lady W. Burghclere Passes Away

London, Oct. 1. The death has occurred of Lady Winifred Burghclere widow of the late Capt. the Hon. Alfred Byng.—Our Own Correspondent.

Lady Winifred Burghclere was the eldest daughter of the fourth Earl of Carnarvon, and was born on July 2, 1864.

She married the Hon. Alfred Byng in 1887, her husband dying in the same year. In 1900 she married Lord Burghclere, President of the Board of Agriculture, who died 12 years ago.

During the Great War Lady Burghclere did notable relief work at home and was the President of Lady Burghclere's Fund for the Relief of Prisoners of War.

She was the author of several biographical works including "The Life of George Villiers," "Life of James, first Duke of Ormonde," and "Stratford."

He was born on Oct. 13, 1883, and in 1909 married Nettie C. Greenland. He was educated at

WAR DECLARED ON KIDNAPPERS.

AUSPICIOUS START TO CAMPAIGN

New York, Oct. 1. A most auspicious beginning has been made in the government's determined campaign to rid the country of kidnapers.

Seven out of ten persons charged with the kidnapping in July last of Mr. C. F. Urachol, the famous oil millionaire who was ransomed for $375,000, have been convicted in Oklahoma City.

The convicted kidnapers include Harvey Bailey, who is regarded as one of the most dangerous gangsters in the United States. The sentences upon Bailey and the other kidnapers will be announced next week.

The prosecuting Counsel, following the convictions, declared that every criminal in the United States could start quaking in his shoes for "we are going right down the line."—Reuter.

ILLINOIS SENTENCES.

Convicted Kidnappers Get Heavy Sentences.

New York, Oct. 1. Sentences ranging from life to five years hard labour have been passed in Edwardsville, Illinois, upon six persons convicted of kidnapping August Luer, a prominent septuagenarian banker.

The jury was absent for 41 hours. It is learned that they all agreed upon the imposition of the death penalty for two men prisoners, but as they were unable to agree upon the same penalty for the women prisoners, they compromised on life sentences for three prisoners.

Twelve states in America including Illinois, provide the death penalty for kidnapers.—Reuter.

MALARIAL TOLL.

HUGE DEATH ROLL IN PINGKIANG DISTRICT

Nanking, Oct. 1. Malaria has taken a terrible toll in the Pingkiang district of Hunan, near the Kiangsi border.

Of the district's population of 400,000, ninety-five per cent. have been stricken by the malady, while over 50,000 are reported to have succumbed.

One report states that it is difficult to find men to bury the dead in Hunan.

Public leaders and foreign missionaries are taking an active part to check the epidemic, and a committee has been formed to rush medical aid to the affected area. It is estimated that at least five hundred pounds of quinine is needed for the sufferers.—Reuter.

St. Paul's School. Before winning the Skipton Division he unsuccessfully contested the North-Lambeth division in 1922 and 1923.

SCOUTS AND GUIDES TEA PARTY.

ENJOYABLE AFTERNOON AT MOUNTAIN LODGE

Nearly five hundred Boy Scouts and Girl Guides attended a tea party at Mountain Lodge on Saturday afternoon, at the kind invitation of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, who is Chief Scout of Hongkong, and Lady Peel, the Colony's Chief Guide. Excellent weather prevailed, and the party was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The transport of the girls and boys to the Peak presented no easy task, but the co-operation of the Peak Tramway officials and the splendid timing of groups rendered the task comparatively easy. The last party arrived about 4.15 p.m.

At Mountain Lodge, H. E. the Chief Scout and Lady Peel were escorted to the parade by the Hongkong Commissioner and Deputy Camp Chief (Rev. G. T. Waldegrave) and the Rev. N. V. Halward M.C., Assistant Commissioner. The Guides were under the charge of Mrs. Anderson.

In welcoming the Scouts and Guides, Sir William remarked humorously that a Scout promised to do one good turn a day and he was going to perform his good deed by not inflicting a speech upon the parade. He reminded them of the need for service; to live unselfish lives, and in thinking of the World Jamboree at Hungary were there were 25,000 Scouts, of many nations, he thought how the spirit of Scouting could bind together that international spirit.

His Excellency congratulated the parade on their smart turnout, and expressed the hope that all present would have a good time that afternoon, and would come again next year. (Applause).

Tea and Games.

A picnic tea followed, during which the Scouters, Cubbers and Guide officers were introduced to H.E. and Lady Peel. After tea all troops, packs and companies indulged in their own games, in which Sir William and Lady Peel took a keen interest. The 10th Hongkong gave their Troop "yell" vociferously, while the Sea Scouts demonstrated a swim—a strength test. The 1st Kowloon indulged in "Bunkle," reviving memories among some not quite so young!

The Cubs, too, gave a short display, but their chief interest was in Lady Peel's great danc "Girly," which was most patient and friendly, allowing itself to be hugged and mauled by them all. Although the Guides did not show any boisterous play, seeming a little shy some of the braver ones found time to chase a tennis ball, while one small company gave a chorus.

Time to depart drew near and the parade resumed formation. The Commissioner thanked H.E. and Lady Peel, and called for the thanks of those present. This was responded to in the style that only strong lunged Scouts, Guides and Cubs know how!

It was altogether a most enjoyable afternoon, and one which will long be remembered, since it was the first time a number had been to the Peak, and the first time the majority had ever been in the beautiful grounds of Mountain Lodge.

The following troops attended: Guides: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th. Hongkong Companies: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 5th and 6th. Kowloon Companies: Scouts: 1st, Hongkong (Sea Scouts), 1st, H.K. (St. Joseph's), 2nd, 4th, 5th, 7th, 10th, 12th, 14th, 16th, 17th, Hongkong; 1st, 5th, and 9th Kowloon; Cubs: 1st, 8th, and 9th Kowloon Packs, and the Peak Pack.

Antiques may be authentic, but there's generally a catch somewhere.

MONETARY POLICY

Events in the United States in the last few days have made it abundantly clear that a definition of the country's currency is needed to put certainty in the place of the present uncertainty. Any value originally to be derived from consciously keeping people in the dark has definitely ceased to be important. In the early days, it was perhaps useful. It aided the policy of forcing prices up. When people do not know what their money will be worth to-morrow, they are apt to spend it. Prices are thus encouraged to rise. Unfortunately, the only prices that have really risen sharply are retail prices. Commodity values after a preliminary spurt have dropped away again, the index showing them to be seventy per cent. of pre-war levels, while manufactured products are sixteen per cent. above pre-war prices. The day has come, moreover, when the Administration is as dependent upon investors to invest as it is upon consumers to buy. As a condition of lending, investors require a reasonable assurance that money lent to-day will be the same thing when it is repaid. That, after all, was the aim expressly stated by President Roosevelt at the time of the world economic conference, the necessity of creating a dollar that will not change in value or in buying power. He contemplates, it is now believed, a re-definition of the gold content of the dollar, coupled with stabilisation and a promise of a return to the gold standard, at the lower level, and although the announcement of such a policy carries dangers of wild speculation on the stock exchanges, it seems the only way by which a fresh impetus can be given to the prosperity drive. That the danger has not been overlooked is shown by the report that the President is considering the appointment of an Advisory Board with a view to exercising close supervision on the operations of the New York Stock Exchange and it seems improbable that he will commit himself until his arrangements in this direction have been completed. One mad scramble played havoc with the commodity markets and undid the slow building-up process started by the Administration. Another wild gamble with its inevitable reaction would wreck any chance of success for the recovery programme.

NOTES OF THE DAY

POVERTY IN U.S.A.

How long can the United States continue to stand out against the growing demand for a national system of maintenance for the unemployed? The great American cities have handled the problem magnificently all things considered but it is too much to expect them to go through a third winter on funds voted by the Municipalities and secured from private subscriptions. Many cities are already on the verge of bankruptcy. Yet America, despite budgetary difficulties, has immense reserves of taxable capacity still untouched, and among its population highly inflammable elements not likely to be indefinitely patient under adversity or to show respect for the law. It looks as if the next month or two will bring with them an irresistible demand for more adequate help.

THE BREADLINES

Despite the claims made regarding the amount of re-employment obtained through the Recovery Act, it is admitted that at least eleven millions will be out of work during the winter, with a prospect of greater hardships than ever. Unless the Federal Government steps in, willy nilly, to prevent a gigantic tragedy. It will require more than a million dollars a day merely to feed people who would otherwise have nothing to eat. President Roosevelt now indicates readiness to assume full responsibility by ordering the Relief Administrator to supply food, clothing and fuel to the destitute. But this means perpetuation of the bread lines, a degrading business at its best.

SHIPPING SUBSIDY

What is the underlying explanation of the South African Government's subsidy of $150,000 a year to two Italian shipping companies for the provision of regular services in order to "open up new markets"? Great Britain has no right to complain if South Africa chooses to subsidise foreign companies. But, on the face of it, this is a distinct blow to British shipping prestige. It would be interesting to know whether in the first place the South African Government made any proposals to any British line and, if so, what was the reply. British shipping certainly cannot afford to let opportunities pass. On the contrary, now, if ever, is the time to create opportunities.

IRELAND

Political tension has reached a high pitch on the Emerald Isle. It would be unconscious humour to overemphasise the peaceful aspects of the situation in Ireland to-day. But the fact remains that the leaders of both factions are seriously attempting to prevent the dispute going too far. None knows better than Mr. de Valera and Gen. O'Duffy how rapidly Irish rivalries can turn into a conflagration once the match is applied. Both are struggling for tactical advantage and attempting to avoid the onus of provocation. Following the banning of the Blue Shirts, Mr. de Valera has handled the highly charged situation shrewdly. Though he has evoked many protests by the establishment of a military tribunal, he has largely avoided the accusation of partisanship by the appointment of the five members who served on a similar court in 1933 under Cosgrave. In the circumstances, his escape of a vote of censure at the reassembly of the Dail was hardly surprising.

SUPER-MILK-MAN

One of the practical certainties of the creation in England of the Milk Marketing Board to control the entire production and distribution, is that it will raise the price of milk. But, whatever view may be held of the character and functions of the new organising body, it has begun well in the selection of Mr. Sidney Foster as its first manager. The career of Mr. Foster has that air of romance which inspired the enthusiasm of Dr. Smiles. Mr. Foster received his education at an elementary school. At the age of 13 he was earning five shillings a week. At 17 he is appointed to manage a gigantic public concern at a starting salary of £5,000 a year. He already won his spurs as general manager of the London Cooperative Society; he knows something, therefore, of the consumers' ease.

OVER THE OPIUM PIPE

AH LO IN PROPHETIC MOOD

By C. V.-L. for the Telegraph

WHEN, on a previous occasion, you shared in the pleasure of an introduction to my loquacious but wholly admirable friend Ah Lo, you will recall how we found him in the midst of a big moan uttered over the poor quality of the new Monopoly opium which he, an irascible addict, has now been asked to "adopt". Short of an illegal partiality for other stuff, he had no other course but to accept the new ruling, even though he doubted its wisdom. The lugubrious prognostications he made on that occasion, regarding amongst other things a phenomenal drop in Government revenues resulting from the new incentive unwittingly offered to smuggling, we had then thought to have sprung from the natural disappointment of a man thwarted of his life's desire. So beyond consoling and humouring him in his weakness, we had paid scant regard for his remarks, dismissing them as merely the querulous quiverings of a drug-sodden fool.

Pride walked before a fall. We, who had shared with Civil Servants a prideful regard for our fancied knowledge of these worldly matters, were destined for a sad fall. Alas, the substance was only too real in what our friend had said, as by now you all will have agreed.

WE MAKE AMENDS.

To-day we returned to our old friend Ah Lo with all the humility of one anxious to offer full reparation for an injustice done: of one who, having heard the Oracle, and been gratified by events occurring exactly as they were predicted, is desirous of further enlightenment and instruction. Both of which we found he was ready to give in generous measure. And without even a trace of that "I told you so" pose—detestable curse and affliction of mankind which has spoiled many a promising prophet, but from which we can happily avert our friend is free.

Over the opium this day his nimble mind was again stimulated and he explored the position relentlessly. "You say," he sententiously, "that sales of Monopoly opium are nearing vanishing point? You say that from $1,250,000 in six months, the revenue has now dropped to less than $700,000, and you are surprised?"

"Surprised at what? At the probable loss to Government revenues expanding to a tremendous extent by the time the next Colonial Budget will have made the position even tragically clearer?"

"This financial question does not interest me in the least (we can forgive him the utterance). It is for those who conduct the Colony's finances to worry over."

He leaned forward, and resumed, impressively. "I shall tell you what I am genuinely interested in. I am interested in what that enormous drop in sales implies."

NOT A JOKE.

"Decreased consumption? I can't agree to your being humorous when for others the question has become of such a tragical moment. It simply means that people are leaving one kind of opium they do not want, because it is dearer and inferior, for another that is cheaper and better. It also means they are able to get that other without apparent difficulty, despite this "intensive campaign" about which you have spoken and have wearied me by the repetition.

"You say it is incredible? Go then, into the native boarding houses, the Chinese clubs, into unlicensed premises, even into private homes, and there you will find the answer to this riddle of a Colony-wide consumption of tobacco opium. But it will still leave you marvelling as to how almost everyone who wants it is able to smoke it with comparative facility."

"What does it not suggest to you, but the obvious? Official short-sightedness and incompetence and/or laxity in preventive work? Or—abhorrent thought—can it be possible the natural ingenuity of the opium smuggler has outstripped the wits of those responsible for the protection of our revenues? Of what avail these continuous raids on dens and the resultant filling up of an already congested Prison with poisoned smokers and potential candidates for tuberculosis?"

"Rather should you look for the fundamental cause in opium quality differences: the one unsatisfying despite its high cost, the other gratifying with the additional advantage of cheapness. You ask me to define those nice differences in quality, and it is difficult task to discharge for a non-smoker if confined to words alone. Since you have so firmly declined my invitation, a demonstration may assist. Watch then."

THE FATEFUL DEMONSTRATION.

From the much maligned metallic tube in which the new Government product is imported from Singapore, he extracted sufficient to make a tiny pellet, and held it over the genuine oil-fed flame of the lamp. If the drug were excellent, full of a resiliency and a native goodness, it should instantly respond by a crackle and bubble till the air of the room was charged with an acrid, but decidedly not unpleasant odour.

But this opium did not crackle or bubble to any noticeable degree. After a preliminary swelling, it shrank back on the point of the needle, and no amount of kneading or massaging thereafter against the surface of the bowl could re-suscitate it to life and activity.

The next stage of the operation was the insertion of the cooked pellet into the suction hole in the bowl. With an air as much as to proclaim that he was not in the highest expectations of the outcome, my friend began to smoke, or what is more correct to say, to pull at the open end of the pipe. Here again, if the opium were full of what connoisseurs in another sphere would term "body", a sustained sound should be emitted that was not unlike the purring of a contented cat. But the pill disappointed by an almost total inability to fulfil the strict requirement. Finally, pulling a very face, Ah Lo threw down the pipe.

There was that. In the gesture which reminded me of a technician having been called to perform, reluctantly, with inadequate tools.

The Very Idea!

OUR ANNUAL MEETING.

By Eddie Kelly, President.
THIS is the time of the year when all the local associations hold their annual meetings. By now Hon. Treasurers will be billing their finger nails, Hon. Secretaries will be wondering morbidly whether they will be re-elected, and Hon. Presidents will wonder if their speeches will be reported verbatim in the Press.

As we know our own speech won't be printed in any local newspapers mainly through professional jealousy, we're going to stick it in this column while the Editor's away for the week-end.

THE annual meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Kindness to Shroffs was held in the Snack Bar of the Hongkong Hotel yesterday afternoon. There were present: Mr. Edward Kelly, O.B.E. (Old Bills Excluded) I.O.U. in the chair, Messrs. Peto Watkins, "Wocco" Mulligan, "Ginger" Collins, "Stiff" McFavish, and representatives of the Amalgamated Union of Tailors, the Wash Amalgamated Federation, the Kowloon Residents' Association and leading members of the Hongkong Police force and the local Press.

The Chairman, amidst applause, announced that the newly opened China Emporium would sell goods on credit. Pass books had been issued and could be received from members of the Executive upon payment of a round of drinks.

Great difficulty had been experienced in procuring these special privileges for members of the Association, said Mr. Kelly. It was not until the Chairman of Directors of the China Emporium had been convinced that members' chit accounts had been stopped at every other place in Hongkong that he consented to issue the pass books.

The Chairman also reported that the well known shroff, Sze Tat-chit had fallen down the steps of the Hongkong Telegraph Office. Suggestions, doubtless engendered by jealousy, had been made that the shroff had in the first place been kicked by Mr. Kelly.

"I wish to nail that lie" said the chairman. "Sze Tat-chit was not kicked down the stairs. He was taken by the collar and the seat of his trousers and thrown down the stairs." (Applause.)

Amid scenes of great enthusiasm, the representative of the Tailors Association praised the Hongkong Government for its recent Moneylenders Ordinance.

"I was greatly touched, when I first heard the news," he said.

The Chairman: So were the moneylenders. (Prolonged laughter and applause.)

Two members of the Kowloon Residents' Association reported that their names had now appeared on the honour board of the K.C.C. for two months. The figure $110 stood against the name of one and $123 against the name of the other. Coincident with this, they reported, further credit had been refused them.

On the motion of the chairman, a vote of condolence was passed to the two members, their relatives and friends. Members stood in silence for two minutes as a mark of sympathy.

An alarming suggestion that drinks would not be free at the next St. Patrick's Ball was referred to by the chairman. To deal with this rumour, he had brought Mr. "Wocco" Mulligan along.

There was tense silence as Mr. Mulligan rose to speak. "Gentlemen," he said, "There is no truth in the rumour."

When the applause had subsided, Mr. Mulligan continued: "At first it was thought that some such move might have to be made. Then came the water shortage and our duty was clear. We could not allow our guests to drink water. We saw our duty to the Government and we have done our best to fulfil it."

The Hon. Treasurer reported that he had failed to make the accounts balance. Receipts had been nil, for no members had paid their subscriptions, and accounts amounted to $1,500.

"This is a happy state of affairs," said the Chairman, who moved a vote of confidence in the Hon. Treasurer.

"Any man who can get away with what he has got away with deserves our most supreme confidence," he said.

The meeting was stopped by the police at 2 a.m.

"Let's not fuss, dear. We'll feed her what your mother says one week and what my mother says the next."

Home Football

SECOND DIVISION
TEAMS ASTRAY

(By "The Pilgrim").

It was a day of big scoring among the giants of the Senior Division on Saturday, no less than 36 goals falling to the eleven home teams. Only the Spurs distinguished themselves on foreign territory beating the downcast Pensioners by four goals without reply.

Credit is due to the Wolves who overcame their inferiority complex sufficiently to gather a point from Stoke but the remainder of the away clubs failed, as I expected.

Arsenal took the colour out of the luckless Middleborough to the tune of 6-0 but I imagine even this display before the Lowly Midlanders was not wholly convincing to the exciting Highbury supporters. They are accustomed to higher game than this.

Positions of the four leaders of the First Division fluctuate slightly, but Portsmouth by reason of their defeat of the Villa at Fratton Park continue to head the list. Wednesday gained their second win at Bramall Lane at the expense of Newcastle, and Liverpool notched the odd goal of five against their local rivals, Everton.

DIFFERENT TALE.

This week has been a safe card for punters as far as the First Division is concerned but with the Second Division there is a different tale to tell.

Bradford, Preston North End, and Lincoln could do no more than share the honours with their visitors when they were expected to gain full marks, and the day's results was marked by the strength of the Clubs playing away from home.

The erratic Hammers for instance, drew at Bradford and Blackpool finished on level terms at Millwall, although in this case the seaside team might have done even better. By their win at Burnley, Bolton have jumped two places to take the lead of the Division.

Norwich still remain at the head of the Southern Section by virtue of the point they picked up at Northampton but their position is strongly challenged by Charlton and Crystal Palace both of whom won by large margins and now have an equal number of points with the Canaries.

IN THE NORTH.

Chesterfield increased their lead to three points by overwhelming their closest rivals, Barnsley, at the Derbyshire venue. Mansfield again surprised by holding Accrington to a draw, while Gateshead, who had only won one home match, doubled their three scored against them by their Hartlepool visitors. Trarnere were expected at least to share points with Rochdale but failed to do so.

Events went more smoothly in the Scottish League where Motherwell were satisfied with a 2-1 victory over Falkirk which enabled them to retain a three points advantage over the Rangers. A revival among the minor clubs is beginning and I expect Queen of South and Third Lanark to move up in the Division soon.

LES MISERABLES.

CONVICT SHIP'S DEPARTURE FOR FRENCH GUIANA

La Rochelle, Sept. 30. Close shutters along the Quay St. Martin were the order of the day when 673 convicts, bound for the penal settlement in French Guiana to-day sailed in the convict ship, La Martinique.

Columns of troops with loaded rifles and fixed bayonets guarded the narrow path, known as "The Road to Guiana," leading from the citadel to the quay-side, in order to prevent disturbances.

Clad in grey cotton uniforms and carrying a blanket and a bundle with their few possessions, each convict looked for perhaps the last time at his native land.

Then the roll-call was taken, and in chains, with padlocked wrists, the sad column marched down the path and boarded two tenders on which prison chaplains, one Catholic and one Protestant, said a few words.

The tenders then steamed out and the convicts climbed the ladders up the side of the ship and descended to the enormous cages in the hold in which they will travel to French Guiana.—Reuter.

TRUNK MURDER

MACAO JUDGE REFUSES TO CHARGE BROTHIER

Macao, Oct. 1. Judge Raposo Vasconcellos is determined not to charge Jose Eulalia Remedio in the trunk murder case, owing to the fact that the authorities are unable to prove that he was an accomplice to the murder as originally charged.

The authorities are proceeding with the charge against Patricio Remedio, who has admitted the crime. They are undecided what to do with Eulalia.—Our Own Correspondent.

LOCAL FOOTBALL
BY "VERITAS""Until The Rain

The best South China attacker was once again Leung Shui-yick, whose ball control, enterprise, ingenuity and centres bore the hall mark of a brilliant little footballer. Wong Mee-shun contented himself with schooling, and Tam and Ip were really subdued; albeit the slightest relaxation on the part of the Athletic defence and they were as dangerous as any forwards could be.

Pau opened the scoring by brilliantly converting Leung's pass, but Mak Sui-hon responded with an equally spectacular goal, beating Wong with a perfect shot from 20 yards range after a bout of intricate passing.

South China got on top before the interval and went ahead through Pau and Tam.

Aho Athletic enjoyed most of the game for the first ten minutes of the second half, and South China goal was in imminent danger of falling. Right up to the time of the rain it was anybody's game.

After that things clouded. The game continued through a torrential downpour and in the closing minute, with both teams tired and rather dejected, Wong Mee-shun obtained a fourth for the winners.

cost of a number of league points. The introduction of three or four second division players, comparative strangers to the faster type of first division football, naturally tends to upset the team's balance.

The distinction individually was very noticeable when one took stock of the game and that of some of his colleagues.

In more than one respect, Pardoe played as good a game as ever he has locally. He tried desperately hard to pull the team together and once or twice nearly succeeded.

He was quiet, unobtrusive, effective; a conscientious worker, who frustrated others, only to see his own work suffer a similar fate through the ineptitude of the forwards.

The introduction of Allan was not a success. Not because Allan played badly, but because he was in a useless position. I think Allan would have scored goals had he been an inside forward.

But the most obvious change in the second half, which Pardoe just as obviously ignored, was the return of Allan to right back and the introduction of Greenhields to centre-forward.

There was nothing to lose by such a move and everything to gain. The Artillery cannot be criticised individually because there was lowering of standard of play throughout the team. This can possibly be greatly rectified by positional changes, but fundamentally one has to bear in mind that it is something of a new team which will settle down to improved displays only after experience has been gained.

MORE FOSSIL
DISCOVERIESEIGHT FEET MEN AND
HUGE ANIMALSU.S. CONTRIBUTION TO PALEONTOLOGY

New Orleans, Louisiana. Stories of fossilized remains of huge animals and eight-foot men in Central America and weird native legends about their owners have provided another job for a South American Scientific Expedition.

The Western Hemisphere has been remiss in contributions to paleontology so when the director of the American Museum of Natural History heard that Mr. Paul L. Vance, a New Orleans engineer and amateur explorer, had seen strange skeletons in Spanish Honduras, there was a flutter in scientific circles.

Mr. Gregory Mason of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, head of a South American Expedition looking for strange monkeys in quest for a theory of man's beginnings, has been asked to investigate the reports.

Mr. Vance, who spent 23 years in the tropics scouting for banana plantations and railroad rights of way, told Mr. Mason of strange things. At Olanchita, in Spanish Honduras, he said, he found in the sloughed bank of a creek fossilized bones between 30 and 35 feet long. The "thing" had a skull about a yard long, huge hind legs and short front ones. Natives said it was the remains of "El Abuelo de Los Iguanas," the grandfather of the lizards.

Ball and socket type bones, six to nine feet long, were seen in the bed of the Rio Colorado, Mr. Vance said.

And, in a cave on the Hacienda of Don Mariana Leiva, ex-president of Spanish Honduras, in Barbara, he found on a rock platform eleven normal sized skeletons of human beings and one which he judged to be that of a man about eight feet tall. Natives whispered legends of the "slim," a strange people, woolly like sheep, who frequented caves.

WELL-KNOWN WRITER.

MRS. PEARL BUCK PASSES
THROUGH COLONY

Authoress, missionary, and firm sympathiser with the Chinese, Mrs. J. Lossing Buck, or, to use her better-known name, Pearl Buck, passed through Hongkong on Saturday by the Lloyd Triestino liner Conte Rosso.

Early last year Mrs. Buck published her famous book "The Good Earth," in which she set forth and supported the Chinese views on life and religion. In it she expressed plainly her inability to believe that the heathen races were eternally damned unless they subscribed to Christian doctrines.

The book had a very large sale in Europe and the United States, and created a great stir in religious circles. The American Presbyterian body condemned it, and at a meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions, Mrs. Buck was accused of having indicated that she did not consider a belief in the Divinity of Christ to be essential to salvation and did not believe in the New Testament miracles or original sin.

Mrs. Buck refused to withdraw a word she had written or said, and in May when in New York resigned from the body.

Mrs. Buck probably knows the Chinese language and customs more than any other Western woman of her period. She was the daughter of missionaries serving in China, and she was a missionary herself when she married Dr. J. Lossing Buck, head of the Agricultural Department of the Presbyterian University at Nanking.

Her sympathy with the Chinese people is intense, and she has written many articles for American and British publications in an effort to create better understanding of their sufferings and sound qualities.

When in 1931 the Yangtze River floods occurred, she dispatched a succession of stirring appeals to America and Europe on behalf of the Flood Relief fund, and her efforts were responsible for the collection of large sums of money.

Mrs. Buck is now returning to Nanking with her husband.

CHURCH PROCESSION.

FEAST OF HOLY ROSARY
DEVOUTLY OBSERVED

Hundreds of Catholics took part yesterday in the special religious exercises by which the Feast of Our Lady of the Most Holy Rosary, is observed. The Kowloon Rosary Church was the scene of ceremony; one which has been observed as an annual event in the Catholic calendar here.

Bishop Henry Valtorta presided over the principal of the series of early-morning masses at the Church. At this service, there was a beautiful rendering of a programme of music.

Later in the day, the Statue of the Virgin was taken out of the Church and borne, along in a pageant-like procession, headed by Boy Scouts and flower girls, and followed by hundreds of the faithful including many visitors from Hongkong. Rain caused the procession to return before the route was completed.

A sermon and Benediction brought the day's observances to a close.

FAILURE OF LEAGUE.

IRISH DELEGATE ON REVERSES OF LAST YEAR

Genova, Sept. 30. Speaking before the Assembly of the League of Nations, Mr. O'Kelly, the delegate from Ireland, said that the Sino-Japanese dispute was one of the reverses of the League last year.

This failure showed where there were gaps in the Covenant of the League, with the other instruments of peace, which should be filled up.

He asked how far the recommendations and decisions of the Extraordinary Assembly regarding the Sino-Japanese dispute had been put into effect.—Reuter.

INTERPORT AQUATICS

SHANGHAI DUE AFTER TIFFIN

PROGRAMME FOR TO-NIGHT

The unofficial swimming Interport between the V.R.C. and a team from the Shanghai foreign Y.M.C.A. which is being split into two sections, opens to-night at the V.R.C., with a programme of six events.

After this the Shanghai team will leave for Manila, and when they return on October 9, will complete the schedule. The Shanghai team arrives this afternoon. It includes three of the swimmers who won to Kobe last month and won honours for Shanghai. They are Frank Hadley, H. A. Logan and R. R. Duell.

The visitors this evening will line up as follows:

MAMAK HOCKEY

Opening Matches Of Season

The K.I.T.C. who are this season showing greatly improved form, gained a four clear goal win at Soekamp in their Mamak hockey game with the 12th Battery. A. L. Da Souza playing at centre-forward scored the opening goal within a few minutes of the bully-off, and D. Joseph the close of the first half.

A heavy shower of rain (stopped play for about ten minutes) with 21 minutes to go in the second half, and soon after the restart Noronha scored again bringing the score to 4-1. Play after the shower was very dull and slow due to the fact that the ground became very slippery.

Waryam Singh at centre-half with Naidu and Karmal Singh in the back line were outstanding in Indians' defence and the soldiers' offensive was never really dangerous.

Results of the weekend games follow:

Race Pony Injures Mafoo

NASTY ACCIDENT AT VALLEY

A distressing accident occurred at the Happy Valley racecourse this morning, when Tsang Lo-sap, a mafoo was seriously injured by a pony who got out of his control.

Tsang was trodden on by the animal, and one of his toes was completely cut off, whilst another, it is expected, will need amputation.

It was reported that the pony was Swalo, owned by Messrs. Mackie and Grayburn, but enquiries at the Jockey Club stables this morning revealed that it had not yet been ascertained which pony it was.

Season Starts With Improved Standard of Play

WEEK END PROGRAMME OFFERS VERY FEW SURPRISING RESULTS

REVITALISED FORM BY CLUB AGAINST ARTILLERY

KOWLOON WITH WEAKENED TEAM PLAY WELL AGAINST LINCOLNS

Start of the Season

IN a blaze of sunshine, and a temperature making the most exacting demands of players, league football opened in Hongkong on Saturday. Results ran pretty well according to expectations, although the Borderers came a nasty tumble in the second division against the Navy.

SPEAKING generally the standard of play was worthy, and all teams acquitted themselves well. Yesterday, up to the time a heavy rain storm broke over the ground, South China and Athletic engaged in a classic exhibition of football. But the players' spirits drooped in sympathy with the conditions, and all the sparkle went out of the contest during the last 20 minutes.

UNTIL THE RAIN CAME

S. CHINA & ATHLETIC ENGAGE IN BATTLE OF SKILL & TACTICS

(By "Veritas").

Not until the heavy rain storm broke over the ground mid way through the second half, which had the effect not only of making difficult the state of the ball and pitch, but of dampening the spirits of all the players, could South China yesterday, match their position against Chinese Athletic with any equanimity.

South China won by four goals to one, which was really the Athletic's fault. Never at any stage were the champions three goals better than the Yellow and Blacks. But they profited by opportunism on the part of the forwards and errors by the Athletic defence; hence the result.

Up to the time of the rain, the football was sparkling. The Athletic played South China at their own game; skill against skill, tactics against tactics. That South China came through the experience with flying colours only emphasises their distinctive position in local football.

Athletic's Sturdy Inside Trio

For the first-time for many a long day Lau Mau and Li Tin-sang were positively menaced and puzzled by an inside trio of brainy footballers. Supported by a half back line, who had learnt well the lessons and value of intelligent ball distribution, this trio constantly threatened danger. The essential difference between them and Pau Ka-ping and Co. was the latter's more decisive finishing work.

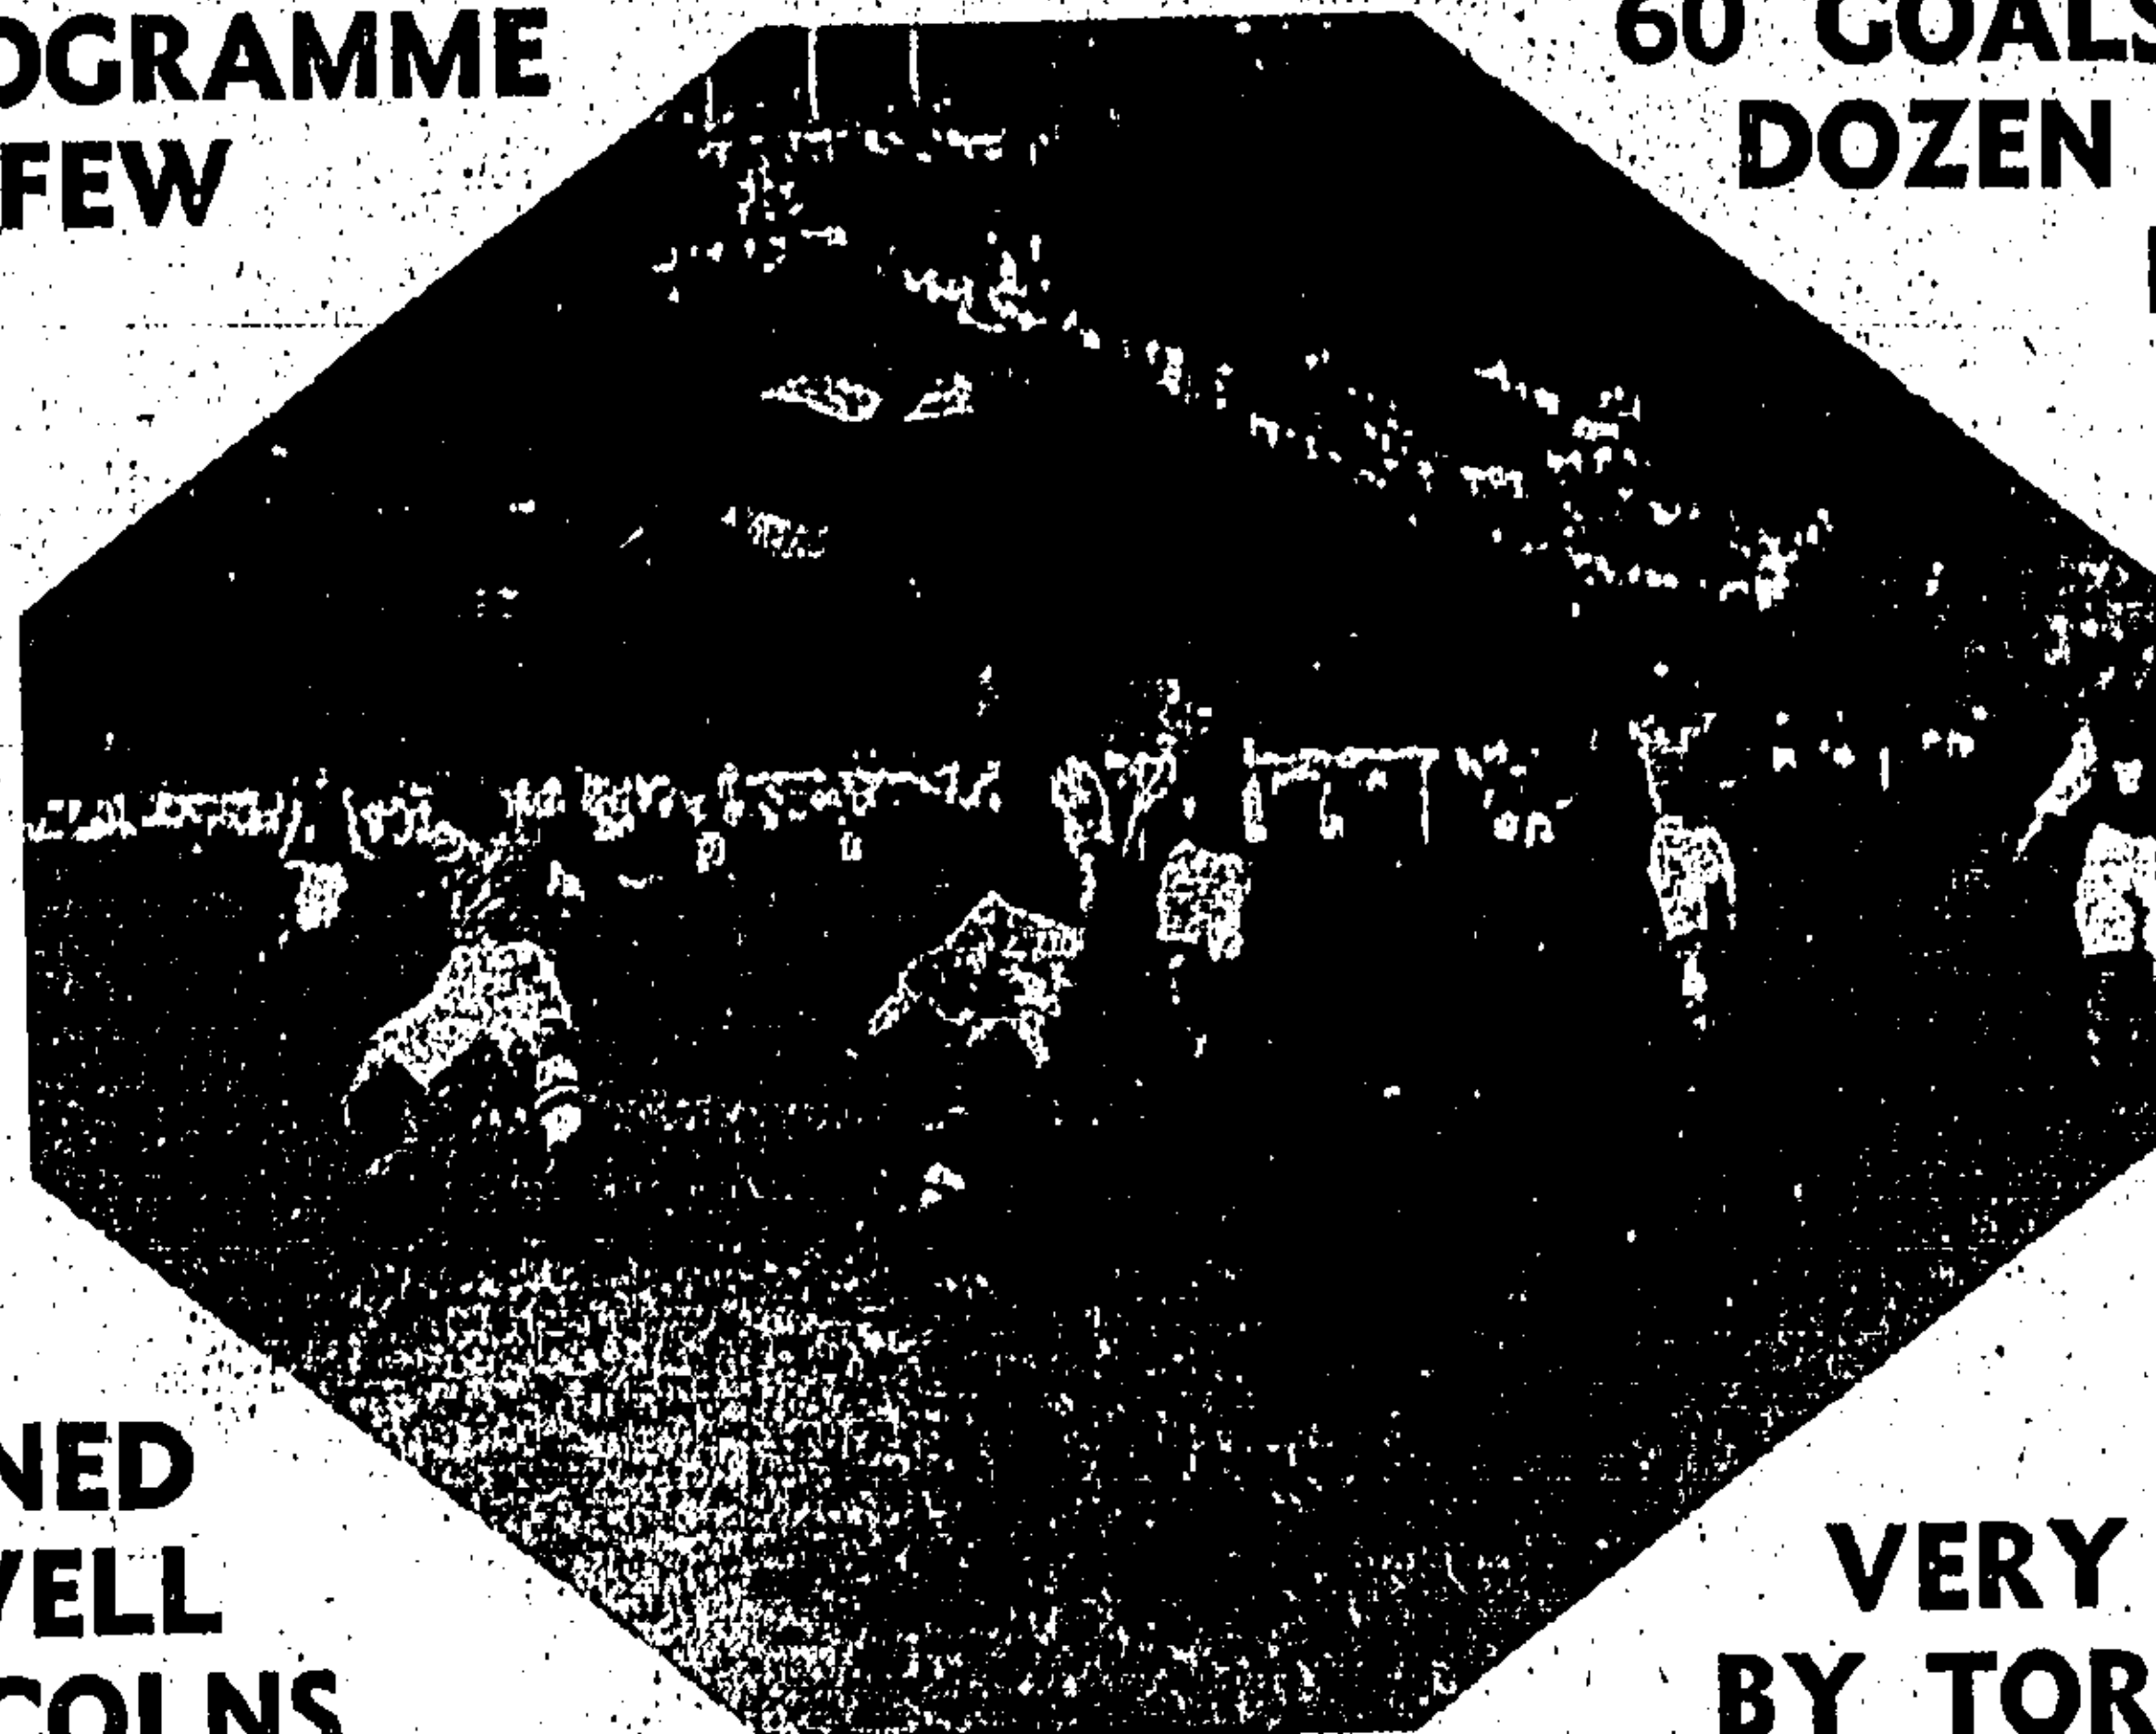

It was this which determined the result. Judged by the territorial play and other factors the Athletic might have reason to complain of the result. But there was this distinguishing feature between the team. The odds on the champions scoring were certainly greater than those of the Athletic.

A comparison of the defences leaves a slight margin in favour of Lau Mau and Li Tin-sang, for they covered better than Tang Kwong-wing and Wong Ping. In consequence Wong Wing, the South China custodian had less worries than his rivals, Li Kwok-ki. The possibility of his having to have a shot from five yards range was definitely less than Li's.

There were occasions when the Athletic defence were strung out in most disorderly fashion; it never happened with the South China rear-guard.

Intermediates Show Their Worth

HARD LUCK KOWLOON

DEFENCES ON TOP IN KEEN CONTEST

(By "Wanderer.")

Kowloon . . . 0 Lincolns . . . 1

If this match had ended as a goalless draw, as it seemed certain to do until two minutes from the end, the result would have been fairer.

The Lincolns were the better all-round team, but the dashing raids of Kowloon in the first half earned them the larger share of the game and in the second half Kowloon's defence held out so stubbornly under steady pressure that they were most unfortunate to lose by a fluke-goal on the stroke of time.

Cord, who played a brilliant game in the Kowloon goal, had saved a host of better efforts by the Lincolns, but when a long swinging centre bounced from the top of the cross-bar on to Ridley's head he had no chance from a range of a few feet.

POOR SHOOTING.

Both sides were guilty of poor shooting, partly due, no doubt, to the resourcefulness of the rival defences, which took the form of swift determined tackling, giving the forwards little chance of standing up.

Still, owing to Kowloon's wing well in check, while Bliss and Jones were solid in the half-back line. Forward, the two wingers did much good work, but the inside men lacked cohesion and individual efforts broke down quickly.

It was much the same with the Lincolns. The defence was much more impressive than the attack, giving nothing away. Kowloon were seldom given opportunity for a clear shot at goal, though Heath did excellently to get back in time to save one first-timer from Blake after the goalkeeper had left his charge.

mer making things very much easier for Wong Mee-shun and Leung Shui-yeik.

Able Substitute for Fung King-cheung

Although the genius of Fung King-cheung's leadership was noticeable in the forward line, Pau Ka-ping proved a first-rate substitute. He showed a particularly in swinging the ball out to the left wing, quite a natural tendency with a player whose right foot is stronger than his left, and he was wont to crowd on Tam.

But his appreciation of the duties of a centre-forward was satisfactorily demonstrated with him on whom to call. South China need have no fear of any disorganisation of the forward line in the absence of Fung King-cheung.

CLUB STRIKE NEW NOTE

FORWARDS DISPLAY INITIATIVE AGAINST ROYAL ARTILLERY

(By "Veritas").

Individual opportunism gave the Club three of the four goals which led to their triumph over the Royal Artillery in the opening league match of the season.

It was a game of contrasts, with hard endeavour rather than skill playing a notable part. The Artillery were never more decisively beaten all last season than on Saturday. This, I aver, in spite of the balance of joss being against them.

The Club exposed and mercilessly exploited the Gunners' weak link, the forward line. The attack was reduced to impotency in the first ten minutes and remained in complete subjugation thereafter. It disorganised the whole team. The defence, with additional work imposed, held out manfully in the first half, but cracked up in the closing stages and were in danger of being overrun when the "all clear" whistle was given.

Honest to Goodness Football

The Club were impressive. There was a liveliness and whole-heartedness about the players which spoke of success in the first few minutes. Co-ordination admittedly was constantly lacking and the forwards neglected to work to a plan.

But real eagerness to get the ball first and willingness to guide it in the direction of goal by the shortest route possible were new and welcome features. It was honest-to-goodness, sprightly sort of football, shorn of frills, but decisive and match winning. The development of a plan of attack; attention to positional play and to one or two other factors affecting individuals, and the Club quintette will constitute themselves into an attack to be feared as much as any other in the Colony.

There was nothing radically wrong with the defence. There was the same old weakness in ball distribution by the half backs. Not so pronounced of course as on other occasions, because for the most part they were on top of the Artillery forwards and therefore had more leisure in which to serve the vanguard.

But there was a lot of unnecessarily heavy kicking after a successful tackle with the ball consequently going astray of its objective. This, fundamental weak-

BUFFALO'S SMART RECOVERY

Level In Little World Series

New York, Oct. 1. A very smart recovery on the part of Buffalo has sent the Little World Series the full distance and with the teams on level terms with three wins each, there is the one vital match to play.

To-day Buffalo levelled up with Columbus by winning the sixth match seven runs to four. Yesterday they won 7-3 after Columbus had won three games.—Reuter.

TOM MAIN IS PLEASED

WITH DEFEAT OF HIS TEAM

THE REASON WHY

It is seldom you find somebody really happy in being beaten, but Tommy Main, the skipper of the Shanghai Interport lawn bowls team is that person.

He told members of the Kowloon Bowling Green so on Saturday evening after his men had been licked in their second game of the Interport tour.

"This will stiffen us up a little for the Interport series," he said in the tone of one who, without losing the slightest bit of confidence in his team, has managed to learn something.

After the really decisive defeat administered the visitors by F. L. Rapley and Co., many local bowlers found the display sufficiently encouraging for them to predict an easy win for Hongkong.

COUNTING THE CHICKENS

But the danger of counting one's chickens before they are hatched is just as potent here as in many other proven instances.

Personally, I still consider it is doing Shanghai an injustice already to make a final verdict of their possibilities in the Interport.

To-day they will have a further opportunity of becoming re-estimated, to local conditions when they meet a Talkoo rink at 3.30 p.m.

Talkoo will be represented by: P. T. Stalton, J. P. Tolson, J. W. Drummond, R. C. Wallace (skip), Reserves—R. Reown.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

A hand usually contains only one good lesson, but the following hand contains four—one in bidding and three in the play of the hand.

The Bidding

South, the dealer, bid one club.
West overcalled with one heart.
North bid two diamonds and South bid two spades. West bid three hearts, and North bid three spades.

Some South players now went to four spades. However, the better bid is four diamonds. This gives North the choice of going to four spades or five diamonds. If he goes to four spades the hand should be passed, while if he goes to five diamonds, South is justified in bidding for the small slam in diamonds.

The Play

In playing the hand at diamonds, the declarer should establish the fifth club upon which to discard his five of spades, thereby avoiding the necessity of guessing the spade finesse.

At several tables South was the declarer at four spades. When West opens the ace of hearts and continues with a heart, South must refuse to ruff the second heart because he holds only four spades and one of the opponents may also hold four.

To ruff would certainly lose the contract. By refusing to ruff the second heart all that the declarer need do is to lose a spade, and his contract is made.

At another table the singleton diamond was opened and South won with the king. The natural play to most people is to try to ruff one of the losing clubs, but this play is wrong.

You have a singleton heart, therefore you can expect to find uneven distribution in the other two hands. The lead of a diamond certainly looks like a singleton.
If you ruff the third club and it is overruled by East, East will lead a diamond which will be ruffed by West. Then another club will be returned which will cause you to lose an extra spade trick.

The correct play is to lead a trump immediately to dummy's king, take the spade finesse, lead another trump and then start the diamonds. East will be forced to ruff with his good trump, and that is the only trick the declarer need lose.

AIRSHIP MEMORIAL.
TO BE UNVEILED BY PRIME MINISTERS TO-MORROW

London, Sept. 30.
Arrangements still hold good for the visit to Allonne, near Beauvais to-morrow by the Prime Minister, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, and the Secretary for Air, Marquis of Londonderry, to attend the unveiling of the Memorial which has been erected to forty-eight men who were killed when the airship R101 crashed in 1930.

Owing to pressing State duties the Prime Minister will return almost immediately to England after the ceremony.

The Ministers will fly to France to-morrow morning in an airship, as it is anticipated the weather is favourable, in Imperial Airways machine. They will be accompanied by an official party which will include Air Marshal Sir Hugh Downing, and will be met at Beauvais by the French Prime Minister M. Daladier, the Air Minister M. Peers and the British Ambassador to Paris, Lord Tyrrel.

National wreaths will be laid at the foot of the Memorial by the two Prime Ministers.—British Wireless.

Nanking, Sept. 20.
Mr. Wang Ching-wei left for Shanghai on the 11 o'clock night express yesterday to consult his doctor, as he is stated to be slightly indisposed.

Official sources state that Mr. Wang intends to remain in Shanghai only 24 hours, during which he will interview Mr. T. V. Soong, Minister of Finance, General Huang Fu, Vice-Chairman of the Hwai River Conservancy Commission, and Dr. H. H. Kung, of the Kuomintang Central Executive Committee, regarding North China affairs, besides seeing his doctor. His physical condition, however, may hereafter require frequent visits to Shanghai for treatment.

Mr. Sun Fo, President of the Legislative Yuan, also left for Shanghai on the night express.—Reuter.

RESIGNATION DENIED.

Statement After Interview With MR. T. V. SOONG.

Shanghai, Sept. 30.
Mr. Wang Ching-wei called on Mr. T. V. Soong at 9 a.m. to-day, while Mr. Sun Fo arrived at Mr. Soong's residence at 10.25 a.m.

The meeting broke up at 11.40 a.m., after which Mr. Wang Ching-wei, in an interview, declared there was no truth in the reports of his resignation. At this time of national crisis, he added, it would not be right for him to resign.

Mr. Wang stated the meeting discussed national problems, particularly the situation in Hopol. National affairs in Hopol, he declared, would be taken over by the government.

Mr. Wang is returning to Nanking to-night, while Mr. Soong will leave for the capital in two or three days.—Reuter.

Following the conference this afternoon between Mr. Huang Fu and Mr. Wang Ching-wei, Mr. Ku Meng-yu, the Minister of Railways, has announced that Mr. Huang Fu will return to Peking to-morrow evening, thus bringing to an end his protracted stay in Shanghai.—Reuter.

Financial Affairs

Shanghai, Oct. 1.
Barring a last-minute change, General Huang Fu is leaving for Nanking by to-night's express, to which two special coaches are being attached, one for him and the other for Mr. Wang Ching-wei, who is also leaving for the capital.

Interviewed this morning, General Huang Fu, who is returning to Peking after his visit to Nanking, said that satisfactory arrangements had been made with Mr. T. V. Soong and Government leaders in regard to financial affairs in North China, and in the future all revenue in the North will be remitted to the Government.

General Huang added that after his return to Peking he will devote his energy to farm relief in North China, though he is not sure how much he will be able to do, owing to financial difficulties.

General Huang denied he had talked of the Sino-Japanese issue with Mr. Ariyoshi, Japanese Minister to China, in their recent meetings. He described their con-

SENT BACK BY JAPANESE AT LANCHOW

Peking, Sept. 30.
According to Chinese reports 2,000 special police, sent from Tientsin to the Lanchow region to suppress banditry, have been turned back by Japanese military forces at Lanchow because they had machine-guns and trench mortars, contrary to the Tangku Treaty.

The Japanese took possession of these, but nevertheless did not allow the police to proceed.

There has been skirmishing in the region of the Ming Tombs and the Nankow Pass between the retreating army of Fang Chen-wu and the Government garrison, but nothing of a serious nature has occurred.—Reuter.

Tokyo, Sept. 30.

Asked his opinion on future Sino-Japanese relations, General Huang refused to comment.—Reuter.

CAR ON RAILWAY TRACK Train Pulled Up Too Late

SHATIN ACCIDENT

PORTUGUESE OWNER'S ERROR IN RAIN

SOME ANXIOUS MOMENTS

A level crossing mishap, fortunately not attended by serious consequences, occurred on the Kowloon-Canton Railway at Shatin last night, when the 6.12 evening train from Shumchun crashed into a motor-car which had become stuck between the tracks.

Some ten minutes earlier, the Portuguese occupants of the car had got out on discovering their predicament.

Nevertheless it was a nerve-racking experience to await the approach of the train and the possibility of the complete wrecking of the car and peril to the train itself.

Warned by a pointsman who had gone ahead waving a red light, the driver of the train promptly applied his brakes, but although it was unable to stop in time to avoid a collision.

CAR BADLY DAMAGED.

The impact caught the car squarely in the back, and caused considerable damage to this part of the vehicle.

No-one was injured, and after the car had been lifted out of the tracks, the train continued its way, arriving at Kowloon some ten minutes behind schedule.

Mr. E. I. Leitao, of China Underwriters, who is the owner of the car and was driving it, told a Telegraph reporter to-day that the accident was caused through his view being obscured by a heavy rain falling at the time.

STUCK FAST IN TRACKS.

He was driving home from Fanning with his wife and other Portuguese residents, and as he approached the railway crossing, which is near Beaconfield Tunnel, he took a wrong turning, and before he had realised his mistake, the car was stuck fast between the railway tracks.

Unable to move it themselves, the occupants appealed to a number of coolies and peasants who were standing by, for their assistance, but they refused even though they were told they would be well paid for their services.

With the knowledge that the train leaving Shumchun at 6 p.m. would appear at any moment delay was full of suspense for the party.

DANGER SIGNALS.

The headlights of the approaching train were visible when a pointsman ran forward to meet it waving a red light as a signal of danger. The signal was observed by the driver, and the train slowed up in time to avoid a possible major disaster.

A number of Europeans travelling on the train, assisted Mr. Leitao and his friends in clearing the obstruction. The car, moved out on the roadside, was later in the evening towed back to Kowloon after having a back wheel changed.

Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. Leitao in the car were Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Remedios.

BOXER SHOCKINGLY INJURED

Macon, Georgia, Oct. 1.

The well-known boxer, Young Stribling, who recently started a come-back, was seriously injured to-day when motor-cycling. He collided with a motor-car and was shockingly hurt.

It has been found necessary to amputate the left foot, while the hip-bone was fractured.—Reuter.

STEW DAY IN BERLIN

PLAN FOR RELIEF OF JOBLESS

ONLY ONE-COURSE DINNERS

Berlin, Oct. 2.

The ex-Crown Princess and her family have made the discovery that bean and mutton stew is "most palatable."

Practically the whole population, from President Hindenburg downwards, had a one-course dinner yesterday.

It generally consisted of a hot-pot or a stew—as the cost was limited to fifty pfennigs, half a mark.

The diners were required to hand over the balance between that and the normal price of their Sunday dinner to a special Unemployment Fund.

PATRIOTISM STIMULATED.

The scheme was one "recommended" by the Nazi authorities, and it was generally adopted in a very willing spirit, but lynx-eyed storm-troopers sitting in restaurants stimulated patriotism and curbed appetites.

Storm troopers also visited private dwellings in the morning just to remind people that the scheme was being undertaken and returned in the afternoon to collect the money saved.—Reuter.

CHANG HSUEH-LIANG IN SWEDEN

Stockholm, Oct. 1.

Chang Hsueh-liang arrived in the Swedish capital to-day and was received by the King.

The Young Marshal later lunched with Prince Gustav Adolf, the son of the Crown Prince.

His foreign adviser, Mr. MacDonald, says that Chang Hsueh-liang is interested in the engagement of Swedish officers to command a Chinese gendarmerie corps.—Reuter.

KENT PLANE TRAGEDY

BEAUVAIS MEMORIAL SEQUEL

THREE KILLED

RUSHING PHOTOGRAPHS TO ENGLAND

London, Oct. 1.

The dedication of the R.101 memorial at Beauvais was followed by a shocking air tragedy.

A small private aeroplane, chartered for the purpose of rushing pictures of the dedication ceremonies to London, and returning to London with the photographs on board, crashed at Hawkhurst in Kent.

The three occupants of the machine were all killed, apparently instantly. The plane was a complete wreck.

THE VICTIMS.

The victims were: Captain Syran, the pilot, a well-known commercial aviator, who served with the R.A.F. during the war.

Mr. Ian MacGillchrist, the chairman of the British Air Navigation Company.

Mr. Bertram Wilson, the press photographer.

The dedication of the R.101 memorial earlier in the day was attended by M. Daladier, the Prime Minister of France, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's Premier, and other distinguished British and French personages. There was a crowd of over ten thousand.

APPEAL LAUNCHED

New Premises for Cheer O Club

As a result of the recent Meeting held at Government House it has been decided to open a public subscription list for donations towards the cost of providing new premises for the Cheer O Club.

The Hongkong Government has kindly offered a valuable site adjoining Beaconfield Arcade at a nominal rent provided that a building is erected thereon costing not less than $25,000.

It is estimated that a suitable building cannot be erected for less than $30,000.00 and a further $5,000.00 will be required for equipment.

The good work carried on at the old Club is recognised by all, and there is no doubt that it was a great help to the Navy and Military units whilst stationed at this Port.

An earnest appeal is now made for support for this worthy object. Donations may be sent to Mr. A. Broarley, c/o The Chartered Bank of India, Australia & China or to Mr. Tang Shiu Kin c/o The Tang Tin Fuk Bank, 171 Queen's Road Central and cheques should be made payable to the Cheer O Club Fund.

PLEASURE BOAT DISASTER

JAPANESE CRAFT CAPSIZES

OVER HUNDRED MISSING

RUNS INTO ROUGH WEATHER

Tokyo, Oct. 2.

A heavy loss of life is feared as the result of a tragic ending to a pleasure cruise off the coast of Kumamoto yesterday afternoon.

A small pleasure steamer capsized in rough weather and sank rapidly, the accident being attributed partly to the high seas and partly to the fact that the steamer was overloaded.

There were nearly two hundred people aboard her and up to the present only forty are known to have been saved. Twenty-two are known to have been drowned and over a hundred are missing.

The coast in the vicinity is being scoured over for survivors of the disaster but it is feared that the majority of the missing must have lost their lives.—Reuter.

A sensation has been created by an allegation made by General Yu Hui-chung, chairman of the Hopei Provincial Government, that the Japanese are laying out an aerodrome in the vicinity of the Nankai University, Tientsin, without obtaining consent of the Chinese Government.

As this was in violation of Chinese jurisdiction, he said, the Chinese authorities were going to lodge a protest.—Central News Agency.

EUROPEAN PARTY RESCUED

IRENE GETS THROUGH TO TSUN WAN: TYPHOON AND NORSEMAN MAKE FOR SAIKUNG

BOISTEROUS WEATHER

An exciting experience befell Mr. D. Stewart and a party of friends, including two ladies, who were spending the week-end in the motor junk "Au Chau Chi-hung" in company with Mr. Sverre Berg and a party of his friends, who were in the yacht "Irene."

Three other yachtsmen, Captain C. C. Fowkes, Mr. R. A. Wadeson and Mr. L. F. Nicholson, were compelled to seek refuge at Saikung after an exceedingly rough passage from Port Shelter, and walked to Hongkong by the path over the hills through Customs Pass to Kowloon City this morning.

ANXIOUS TIME ON MOTOR-JUNK

On Saturday night the Irene and the Au Chau Chi-hung anchored at Discovery Bay, Lantau Island, and all went well until yesterday morning when it was noticed, not without apprehension, that the barometer was falling and the seas rising.

It was observed that junks and sampans were hurriedly beating for shelter, and it was deemed expedient that the Au Chau Chi-hung and Irene should proceed to more sheltered anchorage.

Intensive search must have been carried out. It took nearly an hour to get from the junk to the Kausung.

MR. BALFOUR HELD UP.

There was no sitting in the Small Court at the Central Magistrate's office this morning owing to the absence of Mr. Balfour, who has been held up by the gale at Lantau Island.

Mr. Balfour went to Lantau Island for the week-end, and his return yesterday was not possible owing to squally weather conditions.

OTHER YACHTS IN TROUBLE.

Several members of the Yacht Club had thrilling experiences in the rough weather which accompanied the typhoon threat yesterday, the crews of two boats having to abandon their craft at Saikung and hike back this morning over Customs Pass in torrential rain.

Capt. C. C. Fowkes, aboard the four and a half ton sloop, Typhoon, and Messrs. R. A. Wadeson, of Marine Dragon, and L. F. Nicholson, of Norseman, a five ton yawl, were out in Port Shelter, yesterday morning quite unconscious of the proximity of any typhoon, when the wind rose and the seas became very choppy.

They immediately made for the shelter of a small bay but by the time they reached the bay, the weather was too bad to allow them to anchor.

The wind continued to rise and any effort to sail became suicidal so with jibs only set the two yachts were headed for Saikung.

TOUCHED GROUND.

The Typhoon touched ground on one occasion but managed to steer clear and Saikung was made, luckily without mishap. The boats were anchored in shelter with a number of junks and the occupants got into communication by telephone with the Yacht Club where some anxiety was felt for their safety.

The three then returned to their boats where they spent the night. Soon after daybreak this morning they set out across the Pans and arrived here shortly after eight o'clock none the worse for their experience. The yachts are still at Saikung. Other Yachts out yesterday, Monsoon, U. and L. and Cherub, got away earlier in the day and managed to get safely into harbour, coming in almost under bare poles.

OCCASIONAL RAIN

The Royal Observatory reports that a weak anticyclone covers N. China and S. Manchuria. The typhoon is situated in the Gulf of Tonking to the west of Hainan, moving westward.

Local Forecast:—North-east winds, fresh; cloudy, occasional rain.

Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labour, announced to-day that the membership of the Federation now topped the four million mark.

PAN-ASIA OUTLOOK

CHIANG KAI-SHEK ATTITUDE

JAPAN MUST BE CAUTIOUS

A Nippon Dempo interview with General Chiang Kai-shek, published by the Osaka Mainichi quotes the General as endorsing the much-discussed doctrine of Asia for the Asiatics.

"I am glad to hear," General Chiang is said to have declared, "that many Japanese are also advocating this doctrine."

Whereas the Japanese have pictured themselves as leaders in such a movement, however, General Chiang is said to have gone on to say:

"It would be a great mistake for Japan to oppress China by military force. Furthermore, that would be against Pan-Asianism. If Japan oppresses China we will fight to the last."

Another interesting paragraph reads:

"The report that as the result of Mr. T. V. Soong's visit to Europe and America, China would obtain the aid of western Powers to oppose Japan in the critical period of the 'Twenty-One Demands' change is altogether wrong. Such fear is quite unwarranted. I hope the Japanese leaders will forget any misgivings they may have on that score."

General Chiang is quoted as telling the interviewer that "China is going to secure the technical aid of the League of Nations, loans, and a supply of arms from western powers, but these things are intended simply for the unification and consolidation of the country. China cannot do more than that under the present circumstances."

VILLAGER SHOT DOWN

GRAVELY WOUNDED BY ROBBER

Shot in the head when he attempted to escape from armed robbers, Lam Chuen, living in a hut at Kap Shek Mi village, Shamshui, is now lying at the Kowloon Hospital between life and death.

The robbers forced their way into his hut on Saturday morning, and had remained some 10 minutes when Lam Chuen eluded them and fled through the front door. He was shot down when blowing on a police whistle for help.

The bullet entered one eye. Three men are thought to have been implicated in the robbery. The man who fired the shot had his face blackened with charcoal.

The American-born author, Alice Muriel Williamson, whose romantic novels are widely read both in England and America, died last week at the watering place Bat under circumstances which point to a suicide.

A Few Testimonials from Medical Authorities respecting the curative effects of SERRAVALLO'S TONIC

in Malarial Fever:

I am pleased to give you herewith my opinion on the merits of your world-famed preparation "Serravallo's Tonic" (Cinchona and Iron Wine), which I have used personally, and have prescribed it as well, with universal satisfaction. During the last one year, I was in Medical Charge of a D. P. W. Road Construction duty in one of the most malarious quarters here, which is called "The Kawkarok-Mynawaddy Road". Here the working class as well as the officers were equally suffering from this dreadful malady and I can very boldly say that I was the only solitary being there, who never had a single chill nor a slight increase of temperature. I attribute this to your valuable tonic. The price of your Tonic Wine did not enable me to place it within the reach of one and all, but I prescribed it freely to all the officers and other well to do men among the working class, who soon began to realize its untellable benefits. Men who could not even swallow one morsel of food, commenced to take plenty, and even went to the extent of saying that they could not appreciate their hunger with their usual supply. Pale faces soon underwent a plethoric appearance and the tonless system became more and more vigorous. To be brief, a daily use of your Tonic brought about in many, a marvellous immunity from "Malarial Fever". Now to sum up my experience, I can, without hesitation say that your "Serravallo's Tonic" is an all-round Tonic, a remarkable appetizer and a sure malarial prophylactic. Under its influence the blood is enriched and its remarkable palatability places it on the front rank of all the other tonics of a kindred nature we have in the market.

Dr. P. M.

C.M.S. Med. Officer, Kawkarok (Lower Burma).

in Enteric Fever:

I have prescribed "Serravallo's Tonic" in cases of Anaemia resulting from Malarial Fever, and in convalescing cases of Enteric Fever, and have much pleasure in saying that the beneficial results from its use have been most marked. It is very palatable, and should hold its own against any of the Ferruginous Wines on the market.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Avoid Sunburn by Using Oil, Powder

By Alleen Hart

Let the woman who never has been sunburned laugh at those who have. Nobody who has experienced the pain of blistering will smile.

Why people go out and get actually blistered is difficult to understand. None of them would willingly put their hands on a stove. Yet they come home smarting and it often is days before they feel right.

If you are actually sun-burned, don't take it lightly. There are ointments for burns that are tremendously soothing. Perhaps your own pharmacy puts up its own lotion that looks like calamine which you paint over your burned arms and legs to relieve them immensely. Certainly you should do something right away about it.

The very best way to treat sunburn is to avoid it. That can be done nicely, if you take a little trouble. Use one of the oils, compounded to protect the skin from burning, before you start. Dust powder over it before you leave. The powder is additional precaution. You can get a sun tan nicely through the oil and powder. But you won't burn so easily. Wear a big hat or don't stay too long in the glaring sun.

Some women simply can't get a suntan. Often the fairest, most delicate skin, merely burns and peels, neither state adding to its beauty, I might add. Those having such delicate skins or skins affected that way should learn by experience that it is much better to be comfortable than stylish, and stay out of excessive sun.

Cool and comfortable is this frock made of silk, linen, gingham or percale. Pockets for service, pleated fullness in the skirt and cut-out sleeves are practical details. Make one like it.

Choose this slim slip, cut on bias lines, if you wish a perfect foundation for your new frock. It molds your figure without a wrinkle and is shadow proof due to the over-lapping skirt.

YOUR CHILDREN

Sun Baths for Infants Should Be "Prescribed" by the Doctor

By Olive Roberts Barton

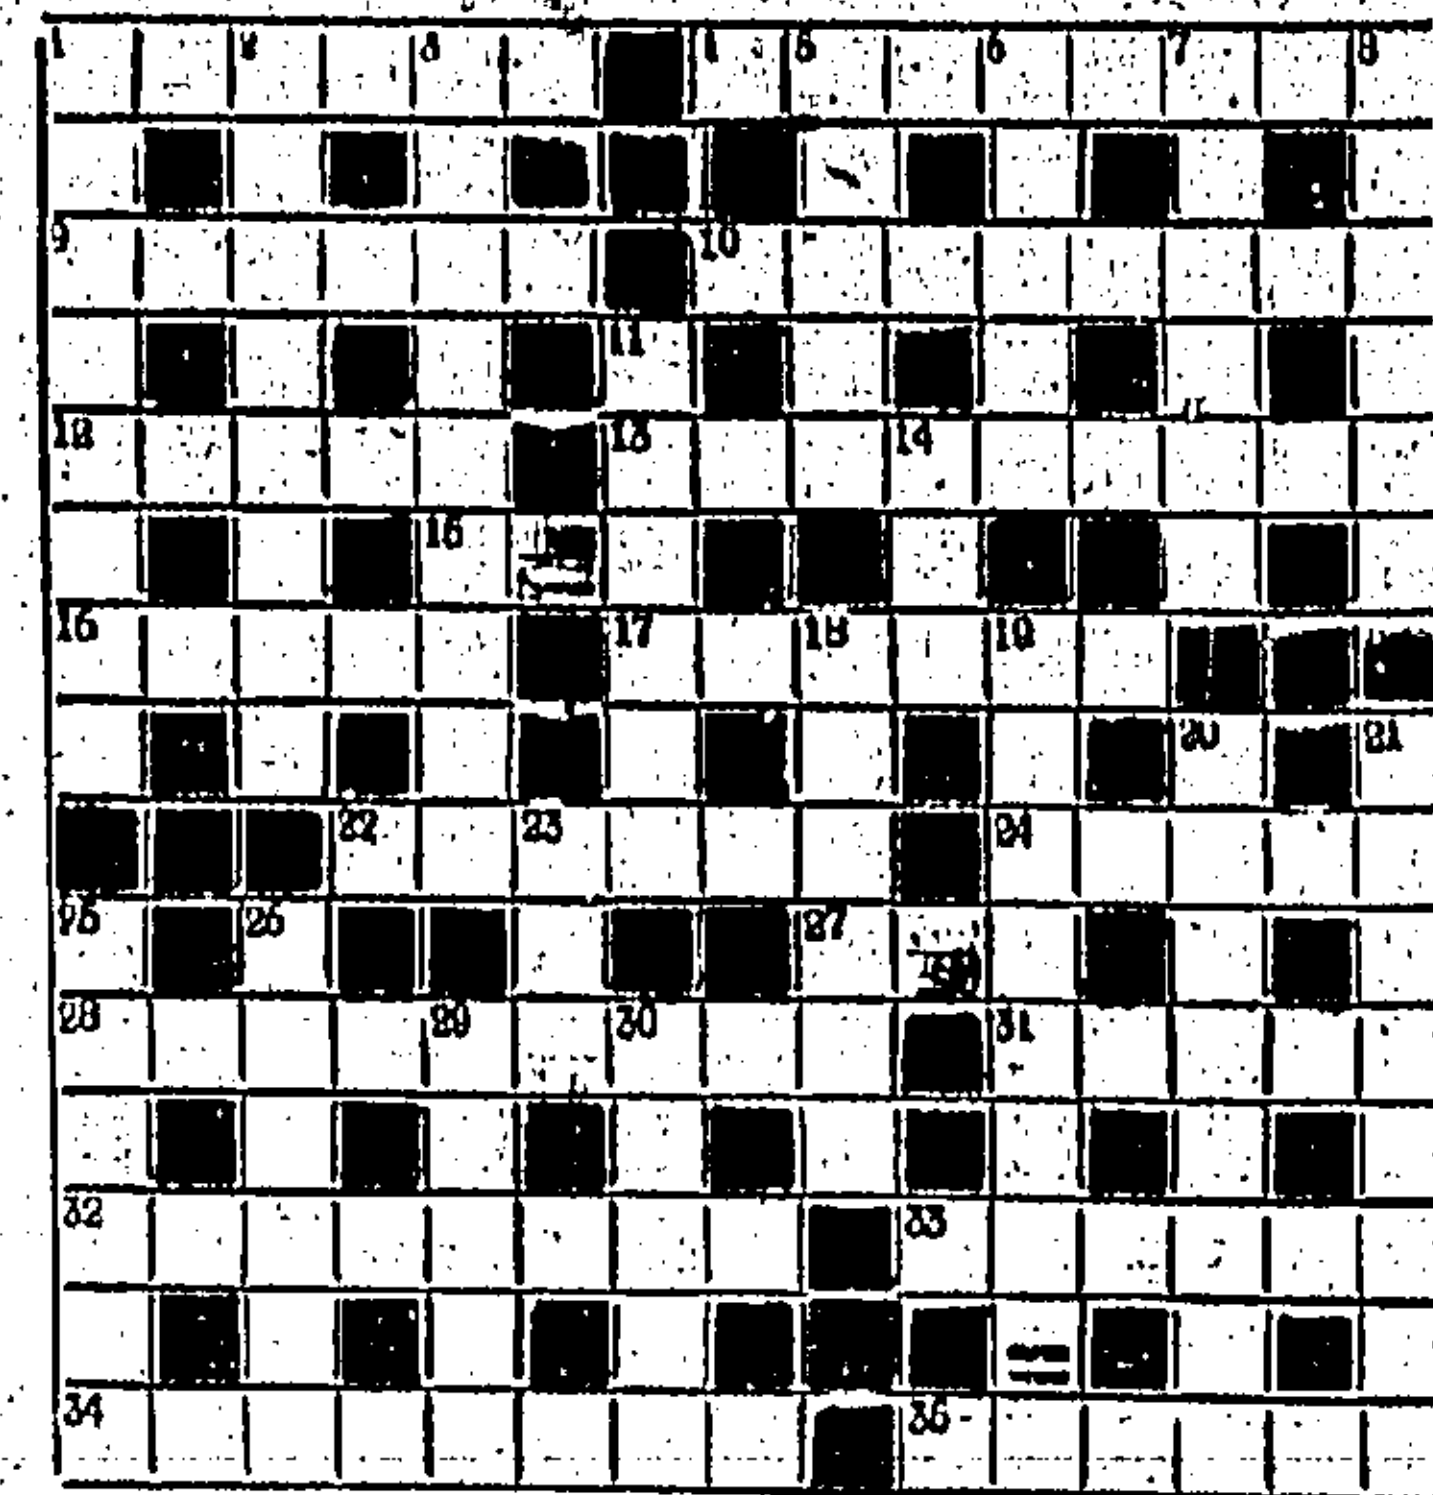

What every mother needs to do is to try to keep herself and her children well and as comfortable as possible in the hot weather. These are the days when the children are far better off inside the house than out of it. If they do play outside, let it be mornings. And if they must be in the sun, put on hats.

Sun by Prescription
Too much sun-bathing is not good for children. There is no use going to extremes and getting faddy about it. Sun should be the doctor's business, especially where it concerns babies, and it should be "prescribed" just as medicine is prescribed. You can not go guessing too much, especially in extremes of weather. Perhaps on medium warm days the long bath doesn't do much damage, but this should be remembered—before eleven in the morning and after three or four o'clock in the afternoon are the best times, not in the middle of the day.

Children old enough to trot around do not stay in the sun continuously as a rule. They are out and in and get their sun in broken doses.

Keep House Cool
But hats are best. The rest of the clothes do not matter. Tempers are short. Children say and do things on hot days they do not mean. We can do a lot of overlooking at such times. It is the best way.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

CHAPTER XXXVI

The nerve-racking day following Dick's departure was over at last. Eve had worked an hour after closing time. Wearily she made her way to the wash room.

Miss Gordon, the coat buyer, was there before her, vigorously cleansing her face with soap and water. Eve felt guilty, remembering the costly error in the advertisement of the spring coat sale.

But Sadie Gordon greeted her cheerfully. "Don't tell me one of you pampered office girls has had to work overtime!" she scoffed amiably. "I thought that never happened to anyone except us slaves behind the counters."

"It happens about four times a week to the girls in our office," Eve returned. "What do you mean—pampered? That word isn't in the dictionary of a department store executive."

"Isn't that the truth!" agreed the other. "It's hard work, all right, but I like it just the same. Maybe that's because it's all I know. When I was 14 I was a stock girl at Rosenblum's. And I've been through the whole works—wrapper, errand girl, saleswoman, assistant buyer and now—after 20 years—a buyer. My first salary was $2.50 a week. It wasn't easy in those days. I was the oldest of eight children and all I ever got from my pay envelope was car-fare. I carried my lunch from home, done up in a newspaper. A sandwich and homemade cookies, maybe, and an apple. Likely as not we'd have nothing but potato soup for supper. But it was good potato soup! Plenty of milk in it and tiny egg dumplings."

"My mother was wonderful. I hate to think how hard she worked for us. My father worked hard, too, but always for small wages. He never got ahead—never had a business of his own. That was a great disappointment to my mother. But he didn't care about running a business. All the time he could have to himself he would play on his violin."

"He was a tailor and my mother made him teach his trade to my three brothers. They had her business head and they made good. Started a little shop in a rickety old building on a side street. Now they own Gordon's on the avenue—Gordon's tweeds, you know. They could outstep the Prince of Wales himself!"

"Gordon's? But I thought—I've heard—" Eve began, then broke off in embarrassment.

"That Gordon's is owned by the Koveleski brothers?" Sadie finished the sentence for Eve matter-of-factly. "Well, it is. Abe and Sol and Ben. My name is Koveleski too but my mother thought we should have an American name in business."

"It's funny about names," Miss Gordon went on. "Our old country name wasn't good enough for a first class clothing store or for Bixby's coat buyer but it was just right for Abe's Lina when she turned out to be a real violinist."

"Lina—Lina Koveleski?" Eve repeated in amazement. "Not—not THE Koveleski, the famous girl violinist?"

"Sure," returned Sadie Gordon calmly. "Why not? She could carry a tune before she could walk and she was playing in public at four. She can make a violin speak—our Lina can! And she's a good girl, always thinking up some little surprise for her mother and father. I used to think it was foolish—the money Abe paid out for lessons for that child. But he always said she would make good, and she has. But here I go, bragging about Lina, and your husband waiting down at the side door to take you to dinner!"

At this mention of Dick doubt and loneliness again overwhelmed Eve. "He isn't waiting to-night," she sighed. "He left yesterday for the Adirondacks. He's on a new job there. He went on, encouraged by Sadie. Gordon's unexpected friendliness. 'He'll be gone for a year—longer, perhaps. He's superintending a big construction job—some hospital buildings.' 'You'll be leaving us before long then.'"

The certainty in Miss Gordon's voice irritated Eve. "Oh, no! I'm not leaving," she returned spiritedly. "I'll go on with my work here. We're modern—my husband and I. We started our marriage on a 50-50 basis. It has always seemed to me that a woman's career is just as important as a man's."

"Sounds grand, dearie, but the arrangement doesn't always work out as you expected. If I were you I'd chuck this job and follow that handsome husband to the wilds before it's too late—even if I had to live in a tent and eat canned salmon and baked beans three times a day. It isn't safe to be so careless with a husband these days! Too many 'lady pirates' cruising about the sea of matrimony."

"This career business is all right while you're young and ambitious—but by the time you're my age you'll probably learn nothing is so important in a woman's life as a home, a husband and two or three youngsters to work and plan for. I can see that now—when it's too late! Maybe it'll be too late when you see it. Believe me, dearie, by the time a woman is 50 it isn't a big name for herself or a big salary that seems important—not when she's facing a lonely old age."

"Tell you what," the brisk, kindly woman went on as they descended long flights of stairs to the street (the elevators having stopped for the day), "why not come home with me to dinner if you haven't any special plans for the evening? I'll get something at the delicatessen at the corner and make some of that potato soup I was telling you about. It would be a real kindness to me! It never seems worth while to cook a hot meal for myself and yet I do get tired of restaurant food."

Eve accepted the invitation gladly. They stopped at the delicatessen shop and while Miss Gordon bought half a roast chicken, greens for salad, a small cheese cake and rolls, Eve selected a box of candy as her contribution to the little feast.

Miss Gordon lived in a large apartment house just off the avenue. The building, convenient to her work, was in a neighbourhood no longer considered fashionable. This factor, which seemed important to Eve, apparently gave Miss Gordon no concern.

"I've lived here for 15 years," she said as though in answer to Eve's unspoken thought. "I could afford a better place now, of course, but I'm used to this and it seems too much bother to move. I know what you're thinking—that if you were in my place you'd call a second-hand man, get rid of this ugly furniture and take one of those swanky new apartments on the Heights where everything is done merely by turning an electric switch. Well—I think I like this better!"

Eve, setting the table and preparing the salad while her hostess peeled potatoes and put them on to boil, found herself telling Sadie Gordon about Mrs. Brooks' old house with its great trees and attractive garden and how Dick had turned its dinginess into beauty with hammer, nails and a paint brush.

"I'd hate dreadfully to leave now," she admitted, "though I thought the place was impossible at first."

"This potato soup is delicious," she assured her hostess when they were seated at the cheerful table. "You can surprise your husband with it some evening," she said.

"Oh, I don't have much time for cooking," Eve confessed. "Dick gets home first—or old when he was here. He usually had dinner nearly ready by the time I reached home. Now that he's gone I suppose I'll eat out most of the time."

"Listen, dearie! It looks to me as though you've picked the world's wonder for a husband. Not many men would go home at night and cook dinner! Don't be foolish and let some other girl vump him away from you. Why don't you tell Eric Barnes you've got a new job as cook in an Adirondacks construction camp?"

Eve laughed uneasily and changed the subject but when she returned home that night the apartment seemed unutterably lonely in spite of its beauty and comfort. She remembered Miss Gordon's advice. Not that she intended to follow it—not in the least! How could she leave Bixby's when the goal she had sought for months seemed in sight?

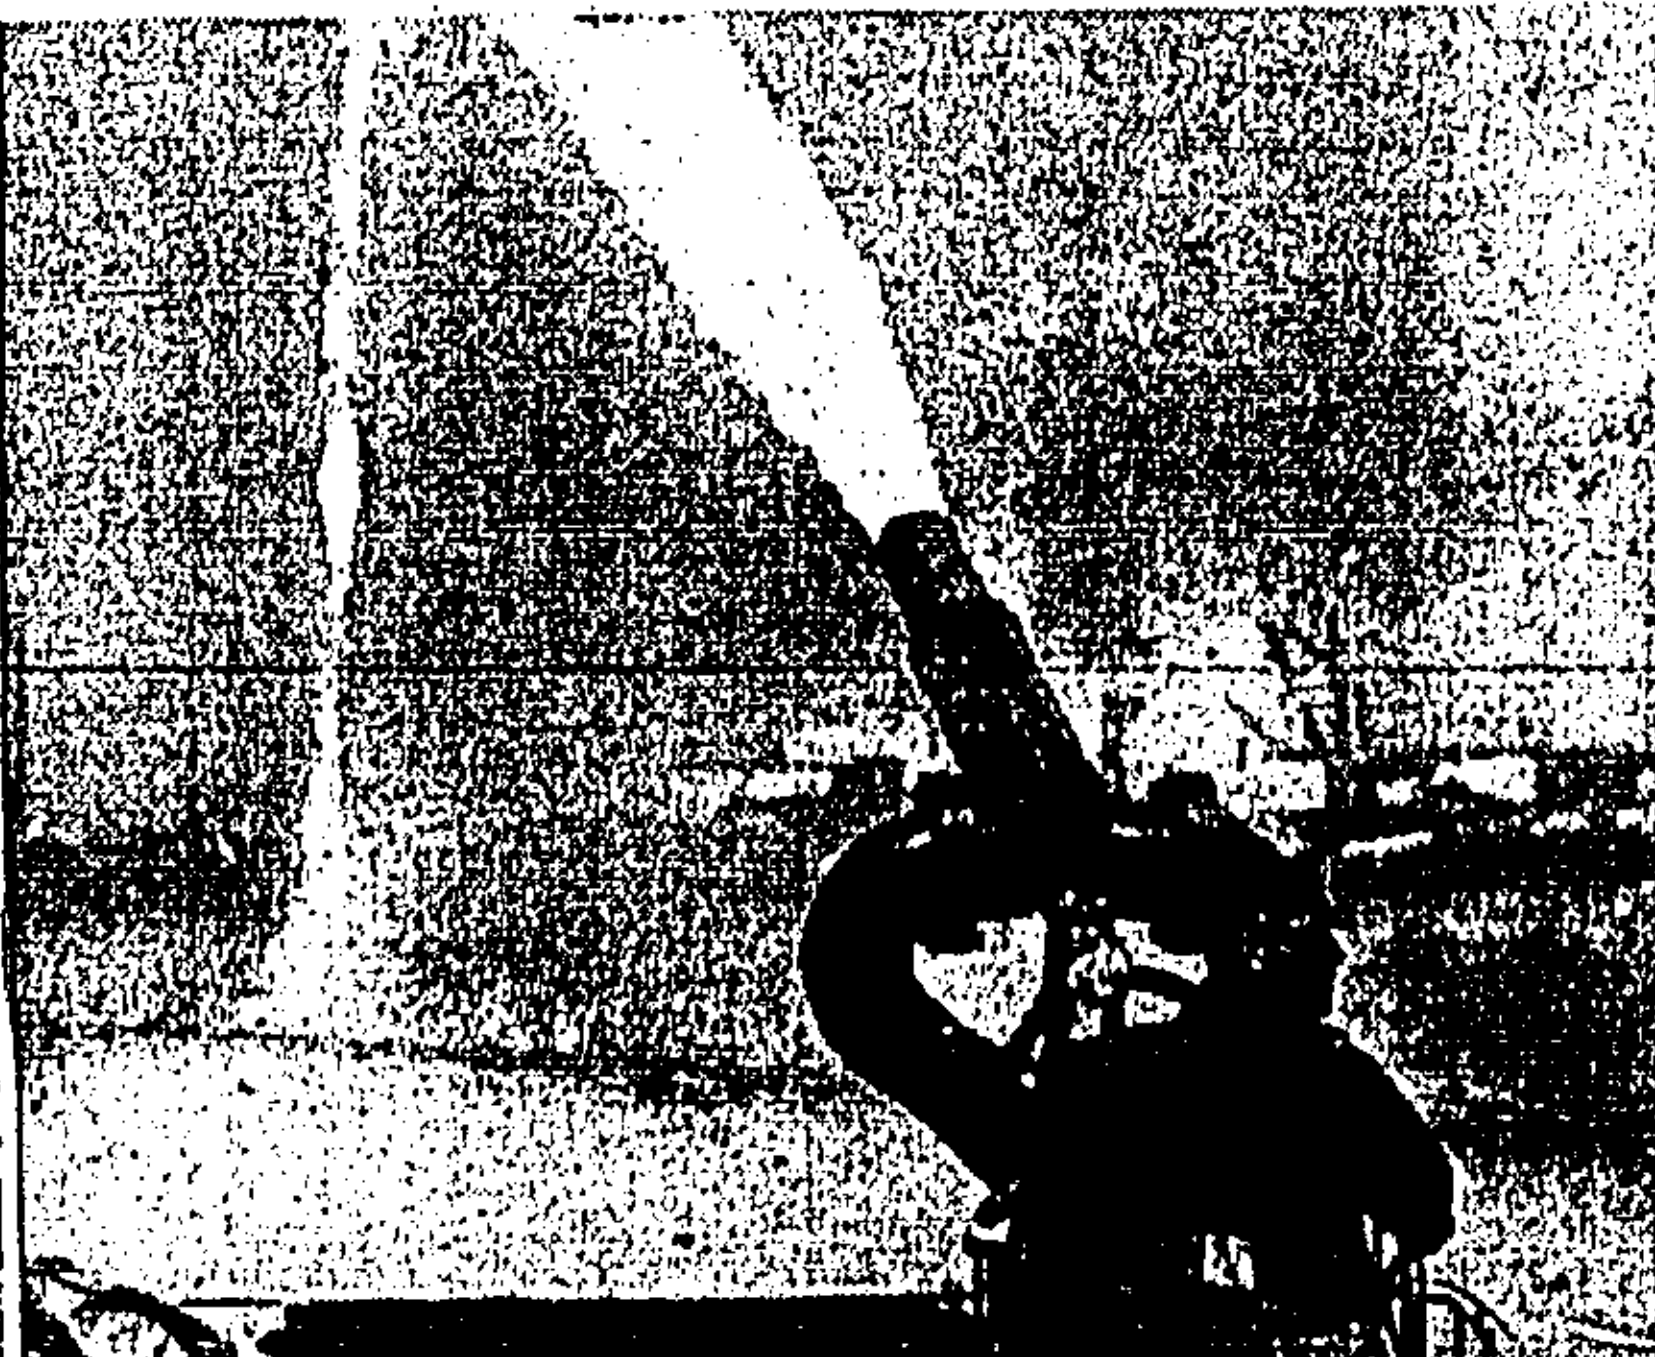

But what if this temporary separation should lead to a permanent parting from Dick? He had gone away so calmly—almost cheerfully. Had he really been glad to go?

Eve cried herself to sleep that night and on many other nights to come.

WAR. DECLARED ON KIDNAPPERS.

AUSPICIOUS START TO CAMPAIGN

New York, Oct. 1. A most auspicious beginning has been made in the government's determined campaign to rid the country of kidnapers.

Seven out of ten persons charged with the kidnapping in July last of Mr. C. F. Urschel, the famous oil millionaire who was ransomed for $375,000, have been convicted in Oklahoma City.

The convicted kidnapers include Harvey Bailey, who is regarded as one of the most dangerous gangsters in the United States. The sentences upon Bailey and the other kidnapers will be announced next week.

The prosecuting Counsel, following the convictions, declared that every criminal in the United States could start quaking in his shoes for "we are going right down the line."—Reuter.

ILLINOIS SENTENCES.

Convicted Kidnappers Get Heavy Sentences.

New York, Oct. 1. Sentences ranging from life to five years hard labour have been passed in Edwardsville, Illinois, upon six persons convicted of kidnapping August Luer, a prominent septuagenarian banker.

The jury was absent for 41 hours. It is learned that they all agreed upon the imposition of the death penalty for two men prisoners, but, as they were unable to agree upon the same penalty for the women prisoners, they compromised on life sentences for three prisoners.

Twelve states in America including Illinois, provide the death penalty for kidnapers.—Reuter.

One report states that it is difficult to find men to bury the dead in Hunan.

Public leaders and foreign missionaries are taking an active part to check the epidemic, and a committee has been formed to rush medical aid to the affected area.

It is estimated that at least five hundred pounds of quinine is needed for the sufferers.—Reuter.

SCOUTS AND GUIDES TEA PARTY.

ENJOYABLE AFTERNOON AT MOUNTAIN LODGE

Nearly five hundred Boy Scouts and Girl Guides attended a tea party at Mountain Lodge on Saturday afternoon, at the kind invitation of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, who is Chief Scout of Hongkong, and Lady Peel, the Colony's Chief Guide. Excellent weather prevailed, and the party was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The transport of the girls and boys to the Peak presented no easy task, but the co-operation of the Peak Tramway officials and the splendid timing of groups rendered the task comparatively easy. The last party arrived about 4.15 p.m.

At Mountain Lodge, H. E. the Chief Scout and Lady Peel were escorted to the parade by the Hongkong Commissioner and Deputy Camp Chief (Rev. G. T. Waldegrave) and the Rev. N. V. Halward M.C., Assistant Commissioner. The Guides were under the charge of Mrs. Anderson.

In welcoming the Scouts and Guides, Sir William remarked humorously that a Scout promised to do one good turn a day and he was going to perform his good deed by not inflicting a speech upon the parade. He reminded them of the need for service: to live unselfish lives, and in thinking of the World Jamboree at Hungary were there were 25,000 Scouts, of many nations, he thought how the spirit of Scouting could bind together that international spirit.

His Excellency congratulated the parade on their smart turnout, and expressed the hope that all present would have a good time that afternoon, and would come again next year. (Applause).

Tea and Games.

A picnic tea followed, during which the Scouters, Cubbers and Guide officers were introduced to H.E. and Lady Peel. After tea all troops, packs and companies included in their own games, in which Sir William and Lady Peel took a keen interest. The 10th Hongkong gave their Troop "yell" vociferously, while the Sea Scouts demonstrated a serum—a strength test. The 1st Kowloon indulged in "Bunkie," reviving memories among some not quite so young!

The Cubs, too, gave a short display, but their chief interest was in Lady Peel's great dane "Sirdar," which was most patient and friendly, allowing itself to be hugged and mauled by them all. Although the Guides did not show any boisterous play, seeming a little shy, some of the braver ones found time to chase a tennis ball, while one small company gave a chorus.

Time to depart drew near and the parade resumed formation. The Commissioner thanked H.E. and Lady Peel, and called for the thanks of those present. This was responded to in the style that only strong lunged Scouts, Guides, and Cubs know how!

It was altogether a most enjoyable afternoon, and one which will long be remembered, since it was the first time a number had been to the Peak, and the first time the majority had ever been in the beautiful grounds of Mountain Lodge.

The following troops attended: Guides: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th. Hongkong Companies: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 5th and 6th. Kowloon Companies: Scouts: 1st. Hongkong (Sea Scouts), 1st. H.K. (St. Joseph's), 2nd, 4th, 5th, 7th, 10th, 12th, 14th, 15th, 17th. Hongkong; 1st, 5th, and 9th Kowloon; Cubs: 1st, 5th, and 9th. Kowloon Packs, and the Peak Pack.

MONETARY POLICY

Events in the United States in the last few days have made it abundantly clear that a definition of the country's currency is needed to put certainty in the place of the present uncertainty. Any value originally to be derived from consciously keeping people in the dark has definitely ceased to be important. In the early days, it was perhaps useful. It aided the policy of forcing prices up. When people do not know what their money will be worth to-morrow, they are apt to spend it. Prices are thus encouraged to rise. Unfortunately, the only prices that have really risen sharply are retail prices. Commodity values after a preliminary spurt have dropped away again, the index showing them to be seventy per cent. of pre-war levels, while manufactured products are sixteen per cent. above pre-war prices. The day has come, moreover, when the Administration is as dependent upon investors to invest as it is upon consumers to buy. As a condition of lending, investors require a reasonable assurance that money lent to-day will be the same thing when it is repaid. That, after all, was the aim expressly stated by President Roosevelt at the time of the world economic conference, the necessity of creating a dollar that will not change in value or in buying power. He contemplates, it is now believed, a re-definition of the gold content of the dollar, coupled with stabilisation and a promise of a return to the gold standard, at the lower level, and although the announcement of such a policy carries dangers of wild speculation on the stock exchanges, it seems the only way by which a fresh impetus can be given to the prosperity drive. That the danger has not been overlooked is shown by the report that the President is considering the appointment of an Advisory Board with a view to exercising close supervision on the operations of the New York Stock Exchange and it seems improbable that he will commit himself until his arrangements in this direction have been completed. One mad scramble played havoc with the commodity markets and undid the slow building-up process started by the Administration. Another wild gamble with its inevitable reaction would wreck any chance of success for the recovery programme.

NOTES OF THE DAY

POVERTY IN U.S.A.

How long can the United States continue to stand out against the growing demand for a national system of maintenance for the unemployed? The great American cities have handled the problem magnificently all things considered, but it is too much to expect them to go through a third winter on funds voted by the Municipalities and secured from private subscriptions. Many cities are already on the verge of bankruptcy. Yet America, despite budgetary difficulties, has immense reserves of taxable capacity still untouched, and among its population highly inflammable elements not likely to be indefinitely patient under adversity or to show respect for the law. It looks as if the next month or two will bring with them an irresistible demand for more adequate help.

THE BREADLINES

Despite the claims made regarding the amount of re-employment obtained through the Recovery Act, it is admitted that at least eleven millions will be out of work during the winter, with a prospect of greater hardships than ever. Unless the Federal Government steps in, willy nilly, to prevent a gigantic tragedy. It will require more than a million dollars a day merely to feed people who would otherwise have nothing to eat. President Roosevelt now indicates readiness to assume full responsibility by ordering the Relief Administrator to supply food, clothing and fuel to the destitute. But this means perpetuation of the bread lines, a degrading business at its best.

SHIPPING SUBSIDY

What is the underlying explanation of the South African Government's subsidy of $150,000 a year to two Italian shipping companies for the provision of regular services in order to "open up new markets"? Great Britain has no right to complain if South Africa chooses to subsidise foreign companies. But, on the face of it, this is a distinct blow to British shipping prestige. It would be interesting to know whether in the first place the South African Government made any proposals to any British line and, if so, what was the reply. British shipping certainly cannot afford to let opportunities pass. On the contrary, now, if ever, is the time to create opportunities.

IRELAND

Political tension has reached a high pitch on the Emerald Isle. It would be unbecomingly humorous to overemphasise the peaceful aspects of the situation in Ireland to-day. But the fact remains that the leaders of both factions are seriously attempting to prevent the dispute going too far. None knows better than Mr. de Valera and Gen. O'Duffy how rapidly Irish rivalries can turn into a conflagration once the match is applied. Both are struggling for tactical advantage and attempting to avoid the onus of provocation. Following the banning of the Blue Shirts, Mr. de Valera has handled the highly charged situation shrewdly. Though he has evoked many protests by the establishment of a military tribunal, he has largely avoided the accusation of partisanship by the appointment of the five members who served on a similar court in 1933 under Cosgrave. In the circumstances, his escape of a vote of censure at the reassembly of the Dail was hardly surprising.

SUPER-MILK-MAN

One of the practical certainties of the creation in England of the Milk Marketing Board to control the entire production and distribution, is that it will raise the price of milk. But, whatever view may be held of the character and functions of the new organising body, it has begun well in the selection of Mr. Sidney Foster as its first manager. The career of Mr. Foster has that air of romance which inspired the enthusiasm of Dr. Smiles. Mr. Foster received his education at an elementary school. At the age of 18 he was earning five shillings a week. At 47 he is appointed to manage a gigantic public concern at a starting salary of £5,000 a year. He already won his spurs as general manager of the London Co-operative Society; he knows something, therefore, of the consumers' case.

OVER THE OPIUM PIPE

AH LO IN PROPHETIC MOOD

By C. V.-L. for the Telegraph

WHEN, on a previous occasion, you shared in the pleasure of an introduction to my loquacious but wholly admirable friend Ah Lo, you will recall how we found him in the midst of a big mood uttered over the poor quality of the new Monopoly opium which he, an irretrievable addict, has now been asked to "adopt". Short of an illegal partiality for other stuff, he had no other course but to accept the new ruling, even though he doubted its wisdom. The lugubrious prognostications he made on that occasion, regarding amongst other things a phenomenal drop in Government revenues resulting from the new incentive unwittingly offered to smuggling, we had then thought to have sprung from the natural disappointment of a man thwarted of his life's desire. So beyond consoling and humouring him in his weakness, we had paid scant regard for his remarks, dismissing them as merely the querulous quaverings of a drug-sodden fool.

Pride walked before a fall. We, who had shared with Civil Servants a prideful regard for our fancied knowledge of these worldly matters, were destined for a sad fall. Alas, the substance was only too real in what our friend had said, as by now you all will have agreed.

WE MAKE AMENDS.

To-day we returned to our old friend Ah Lo with all the humility of one anxious to offer full reparation for an injustice done: of one who, having heard the Oracle, and been gratified by events occurring exactly as they were predicted, is desirous of further enlightenment and instruction. Both of which we found he was ready to give in generous measure. And without even a trace of that "I told you so" pose—detestable curse and affliction of mankind which has spoiled many a promising prophet, but from which we can happily aver our friend is free.

Over the opium this day his nimble mind was again stimulated and it explored the position relentlessly. "You say," he sententiously, "that sales of Monopoly opium are nearing vanishing point? You say that from $1,250,000 in six months, the revenue has now dropped to less than $700,000, and you are surprised?"

"Surprised at what? At the probable loss to Government revenues expanding to a tremendous extent by the time the next Colonial Budget will have made the position even tragically clearer?"

"This financial question does not interest me in the least (we can forgive him the utterance). It is for those who conduct the Colony's finances to worry over."

He leaned forward, and resumed, impressively, "I shall tell you what I am genuinely interested in. I am interested in what that enormous drop in sales implies."

NOT A JOKE.

"Decreased consumption? I can't agree to your being humorous when for others the question has become of such tragical moment. It simply means that people are leaving one kind of opium they do not want, because it is dearer and inferior, for another that is cheaper and better. It also means they are able to get that other without apparent difficulty, despite this "intensive campaign" about which you have spoken and have wearied me by the repetition.

"You say it is incredible? Go then, into the native boarding houses, the Chinese clubs, into unlicensed premises, even into private homes, and there you will find the answer to this riddle of a Colony-wide consumption of taboo opium. But it will still leave you marvelling as to how almost everyone who wants it is able to smoke it with comparative facility.

"What does it not suggest to you but the obvious? Official short-sightedness and incompetence and/or laxity in preventive work? Or—abhorrent thought—can it be possible the natural ingenuity of the opium smuggler has outstripped the wits of those responsible for the protection of our revenues? Of what avail these continuous raids on dens and the resultant filling up of an already congested Prison with poisoned smokers and potential candidates for tuberculosis?"

"Rather should you look for the fundamental cause in opium quality differences: the one unsatisfying despite its high cost, the other gratifying with the additional advantage of cheapness. You ask me to define those nice differences in quality, and it is difficult task to discharge for a non-smoker if confined to words alone. Since you have so firmly declined my invitation, a demonstration may assist. Watch then."

THE FATEFUL DEMONSTRATION.

From the much maligned metallic tube in which the new Government product is imported from Singapore, he extracted sufficient to make a tiny pellet, and held it over the peanut oil-fed flame of the lamp. If the drug were excellent, full of a resiliency and a native goodness, it should instantly respond by a crackle and bubble till the air of the room was charged with an acrid, but decidedly not unpleasant odour.

But this opium did not crackle or bubble to any noticeable degree. After a preliminary swelling, it shrank back on the point of the needle, and no amount of kneading or massaging thereafter against the surface of the bowl could resuscitate it to life and activity.

The next stage of the operation was the insertion of the cooked pellet into the suction hole in the bowl. With an air as much as to proclaim that he was not in the highest expectations of the outcome, my friend began to smoke, or what is more correct to say, to pull at the open end of the pipe. Here again, if the opium were full of what connoisseurs in another sphere would term "body", a sustained sound should be emitted that was not unlike the purring of a contented cat. But the pill disappointed by an almost total inability to fulfil the strict requirement. Finally, pulling a wry face, Ah Lo threw down the pipe.

There was that in the gesture which reminded me of a technician having been called to perform, reluctantly, with inadequate tools.

The Very Idea!

OUR ANNUAL MEETING

By Eddie Kelly, President.

THIS is the time of the year when all the local associations hold their annual meetings. By now Hon. Treasurers will be biting their finger nails, Hon. Secretaries will be wondering morbidly whether they will be re-elected, and Hon. Presidents will wonder if their speeches will be reported verbatim in the Press.

As we know our own speech won't be printed in any local newspapers, mainly through professional jealousy, we're going to stick it in this column while the Editor's away for the week-end.

THE annual meeting of the Society for the Prevention of Kindness to Shroffs was held in the Snack Bar of the Hongkong Hotel yesterday afternoon. There were present: Mr. Edward Kelly, O.B.E. (Old Bills Excluded) I.O.U. in the chair, Messrs. Peto Watkins, "Wocco" Mulligan, "Ginger" Collins, "Stiff" McTavish and representatives of the Amalgamated Union of Tailors, the Wash Amahs Federation, the Kowloon Residents' Association and leading members of the Hongkong Police force and the local Press.

The Chairman, amidst applause, announced that the newly opened China Emporium would sell goods on credit. Pass books had been issued and could be received from members of the Executive upon payment of a round of drinks.

Great difficulty had been experienced in procuring these special privileges for members of the Association, said Mr. Kelly. It was not until the Chairman of Directors of the China Emporium had been convinced that members' chit accounts had been stopped at every other place in Hongkong that he consented to issue the pass books.

The Chairman also reported that the well known shroff, Sze Tat-chit had fallen down the steps of the Hongkong Telegraph Office. Suggestions, doubtless engendered by jealousy, had been made that the shroff had in the first place been kicked by Mr. Kelly.

"I wish to nail that lie!" said the chairman. "Sze Tat-chit was not kicked down the stairs. He was taken by the collar and the seat of his trousers and thrown down the stairs." (Applause.)

Amid scenes of great enthusiasm, the representative of the Tailors' Association praised the Hongkong Government for its recent Moneylenders Ordinance.

"I was greatly touched, when I first heard the news," he said.

The Chairman: So were the moneylenders. (Prolonged laughter and applause.)

Two members of the Kowloon Residents' Association reported that their names had now appeared on the honour board of the K.C.C. for two months. The figure $110 stood against the name of one and $123 against the name of the other. Coincident with this, they reported, further credit had been refused them.

On the motion of the chairman, a vote of condolence was passed to the two members, their relatives and friends. Members stood in silence for two minutes as a mark of sympathy.

An alarming suggestion that drinks would not be free at the next St. Patrick's Ball was referred to by the chairman. To deal with this rumour, he had brought Mr. "Wocco" Mulligan along.

There was tense silence as Mr. Mulligan rose to speak. "Gentlemen," he said, "There is no truth in the rumour."

When the applause had subsided, Mr. Mulligan continued: "At first it was thought that some such move might have to be made. Then came the water shortage and our duty was clear. We could not allow our guests to drink water. We saw our duty to the Government and we have done our best to fulfil it."

The Hon. Treasurer reported that he had failed to make the accounts balance. Receipts had been nil, for no members had paid their subscriptions, and accounts amounted to $1,500.

"This is a happy state of affairs," said the Chairman, who moved a vote of confidence in the Hon. Treasurer.

"Any man who can get away with what he has got away with deserves our most supreme confidence," he said.

The meeting was stopped by the police at 2 a.m.

"Let's not fuss, dear. We'll feed her what your mother says one week and what my mother says the next."

ROOSEVELT AND INFLATION

RELUCTANCE SHOWN IN STEPS AUTHORIZED

MONETARY POLICY NOT YET DEFINED

WASHINGTON, OCT. 1.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S DECLARATION OF MONETARY POLICY REMAINS UNMADE AND IT IS NOW COMING TO BE BELIEVED THAT HE IS STILL RESISTING INFLATIONARY MEASURES.

An important statement is, however, expected within the next twenty-four hours. President Roosevelt left Washington for Chicago, where the Labour Federation Convention is being held, and the fact that he was accompanied by the entire Executive and office staff is thought to portend a first-class pronouncement.

It is believed that the President is still strongly of the belief that he can force his programme through to success by credit expansion as opposed to monetary inflation.

Official activities to-day are regarded as of an encouraging character.

Prior to his departure for Chicago, where he will address the Convention of the American Legion, President Roosevelt gave orders that the devaluation must be provided with food, clothing and fuel during the coming winter.

$700,000,000 FOR RELIEF.

The Relief Administrator, Mr. Hopkins, states that there will be nearly $700,000,000 available for this purpose.

Simultaneously, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced that a big drive is now to be undertaken in an attempt to energise industry through credit expansion by means of three per cent. and four per cent. loans to mortgage and loan companies and to banks for relending to business firms.

INFLATION DOUBTS

This is interpreted to mean that President Roosevelt is still as reluctant as ever he was to embark upon a policy of inflation, which is tantamount to a levy on capital.

General Hugh Johnson has sent Mr. Walter Chrysler to Detroit to investigate the strikes there.

In consequence of the restiveness among the farmers over the retail price formulas, Mr. Wallace, the Secretary of Agriculture, has started discussions in reference to the control of corn and hog production.—Reuter.

UNCERTAINTY.

An uncertainty continues over the monetary policy of the United States, the entire subject is constantly being reviewed by President Roosevelt and his principal advisers and it is said that even the conservatives advocated inflationary action rather than continuing uncertainty.

Mr. Roosevelt is disinclined to act toward inflation as yet, beyond freeing a large part of U.S. $3,000,000,000 representing deposits in closed banks in order to flush out the channels of national purchasing power.

Political pressure is, however, increasing in the direction of providing inflation on a much broader scale and indications are that when Congress reassembles in January the inflationists will try to compel more drastic steps.

STIMULANTS TO BUY.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt hopes that the sums to be diffused for public works, unemployment relief, paying off victims of the closed banks, and for refinancing mortgages and increasing loans to cotton and other farmers will sufficiently stimulate buying power to overcome the present pronounced lag in the recovery programme.

The major difficulty at the present time is the private capital, in the face of uncertainty over the intentions of the Washington Administration, remains hesitant and unwilling to undertake long term loans.

Similarly industry and business operating under the newly imposed codes of hours and wages are reluctant to see inflationary action.

Mr. Roosevelt definitely rejects issuing greenbacks and is less interested than heretofore in the idea of a so-called "commodity dollar" based upon the levels of commodity prices.

DECREASING DOLLAR CONTENT.

The trend is again toward gold dollar devaluation (i.e. decreasing the gold content of the U.S. dollar), fixing the dollar value finally at a level of about 65 cents.

and releasing gold for settlement of international balances.

The President's conservative monetary advisers prefer this to uncertainty, and urge that he simultaneously abdicate his present inflationary powers in order to remove future doubts as to what action might be taken.

Amid the present confusions, counsel and Mr. Roosevelt's own personal disinclination to take a further inflationary plunge it is as yet impossible to forecast. Nevertheless all indications point at present toward an ultimate gold dollar devaluation before any attempt to borrow against a speculative future.

Government attempts to substitute federal lending have been largely ineffective for the same reason.

Hence a combination of economic and political forces is driving the Administration toward a definite policy designed to remove doubts.

Various well informed authorities believe that gold dollar devaluation may be coming within the next 60 days.

DULL MARKET.

New York, Oct. 1.

Uncertainty over the programme which the Administration was to adopt in relation to currency problem was largely responsible for the dullness of Saturday's market.

In spite of the fact that strikes were on the increase, the market was firm at the close and traders felt that higher levels were in prospect.

An early statement on the Administration's currency policy is expected to materialize. In the meanwhile doubt is seeping slowly into the minds of many former adherents of the N.R.A. as to its ultimate success, and this doubt finds expression in the temporary stagnation of general business and of the exchanges.

In the commodity markets firmness was apparent throughout—Rubber futures were particularly strong—December futures closing at 87-1/2—its high for the last fortnight.

Volume of shares traded in the N. Y. Stock Exchange totalled 1,000,000 while call money remained at 3/4%.—Per Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

New Manager Appointed: Last Year's Loss

A net loss of nearly a lakh was reported by the Chairman (Mr. Paul Hodgson) at the third annual general meeting of shareholders of the South China Motorship Building and Repairing Works, Ltd., held in Gloucester Building this afternoon. It was also disclosed that Messrs. Brandt & Co., until recently General Managers of the Company, are no longer connected with the Shipyard or the Company.

The Chairman said: "Gentlemen: The Report, Accounts and Balance Sheet for the year ending the 30th June, 1933 have been in your hands for some time, and, with your permission, I will take them as read."

I regret that the net loss on working for the year is $91,418.72, which, with the balance brought forward from the previous year, 1931-32, leaves a debit balance on profit and loss account to be carried forward of $143,406.29.

We have also recently completed a Diesel-Electric Ferry for the Star Ferry Co., Ltd. and you will very shortly see this vessel in the run between the Island and the mainland. Her trials were eminently successful and we trust she may be found to be satisfactory to her owners.

Your Directors have appointed Mr. D. A. Purves to be Manager which we feel sure will meet with your approval, as Mr. Purves has had long experience with the Hongkong & Whampoa Dock Company and is an able and conscientious worker.

I propose the adoption of the Report and Accounts for the year ending the 30th June, 1933 and when this has been seconded, I will endeavour to answer any questions Shareholders may wish to put to me.

MAMAK HOCKEY

Opening Matches Of Season

The K.I.T.C. who are this season showing greatly improved form, gained a four clear goal win at Kowloon in their Mamak hockey game with the 12th Battery, A. L. D. Souza playing at centre-forward scored the opening goal within a few minutes of the half-time and D. Noronha at left-in brought the score to 3-0 at the close of the first half.

A heavy shower of rain (stopped play for about ten minutes) with 21 minutes to go in the second half, and soon after the re-start Noronha scored again bringing the score to 4-0. The fact that the ground became very slippery.

Warayam Singh at centre-half with Naidu and Karnail Singh in the back line were outstanding in Indian defence and the soldiers of offensive was never really dangerous.

Season Starts With Improved Standard of Play

KOWLOON WITH WEAKENED TEAM PLAY WELL AGAINST LINCOLNS

Start of the Season

IN a blaze of sunshine, and a temperature making the most exacting demands of players, league football opened in Hongkong on Saturday. Results ran pretty well according to expectations, although the Borderers came a nasty tumble in the second division against the Navy.

SPEAKING generally the standard of play was worthy, and all teams acquitted themselves well. Yesterday, up to the time a heavy rain storm broke over the ground, South China and Athletic engaged in a classic exhibition of football. But the players' spirits drooped in sympathy with the conditions, and all the sparkle went out of the contest during the last 20 minutes.

UNTIL THE RAIN CAME

S. CHINA & ATHLETIC ENGAGE IN BATTLE OF SKILL & TACTICS

(By "Veritas").

Not until the heavy rain storm broke over the ground mid way through the second half, which had the effect not only of making difficult the state of the ball and pitch, but of dampening the spirits of all the players, could South China yesterday, regard their position against Chinese Athletic with any equanimity.

South China won by four goals to one, which was really the brainiest move at any stage were the champions three goals better than the Yellow and Blacks. But they profited by opportunism on the part of the forwards and errors by the Athletic defence; hence the result.

Athletic's Sturdy Inside Trio

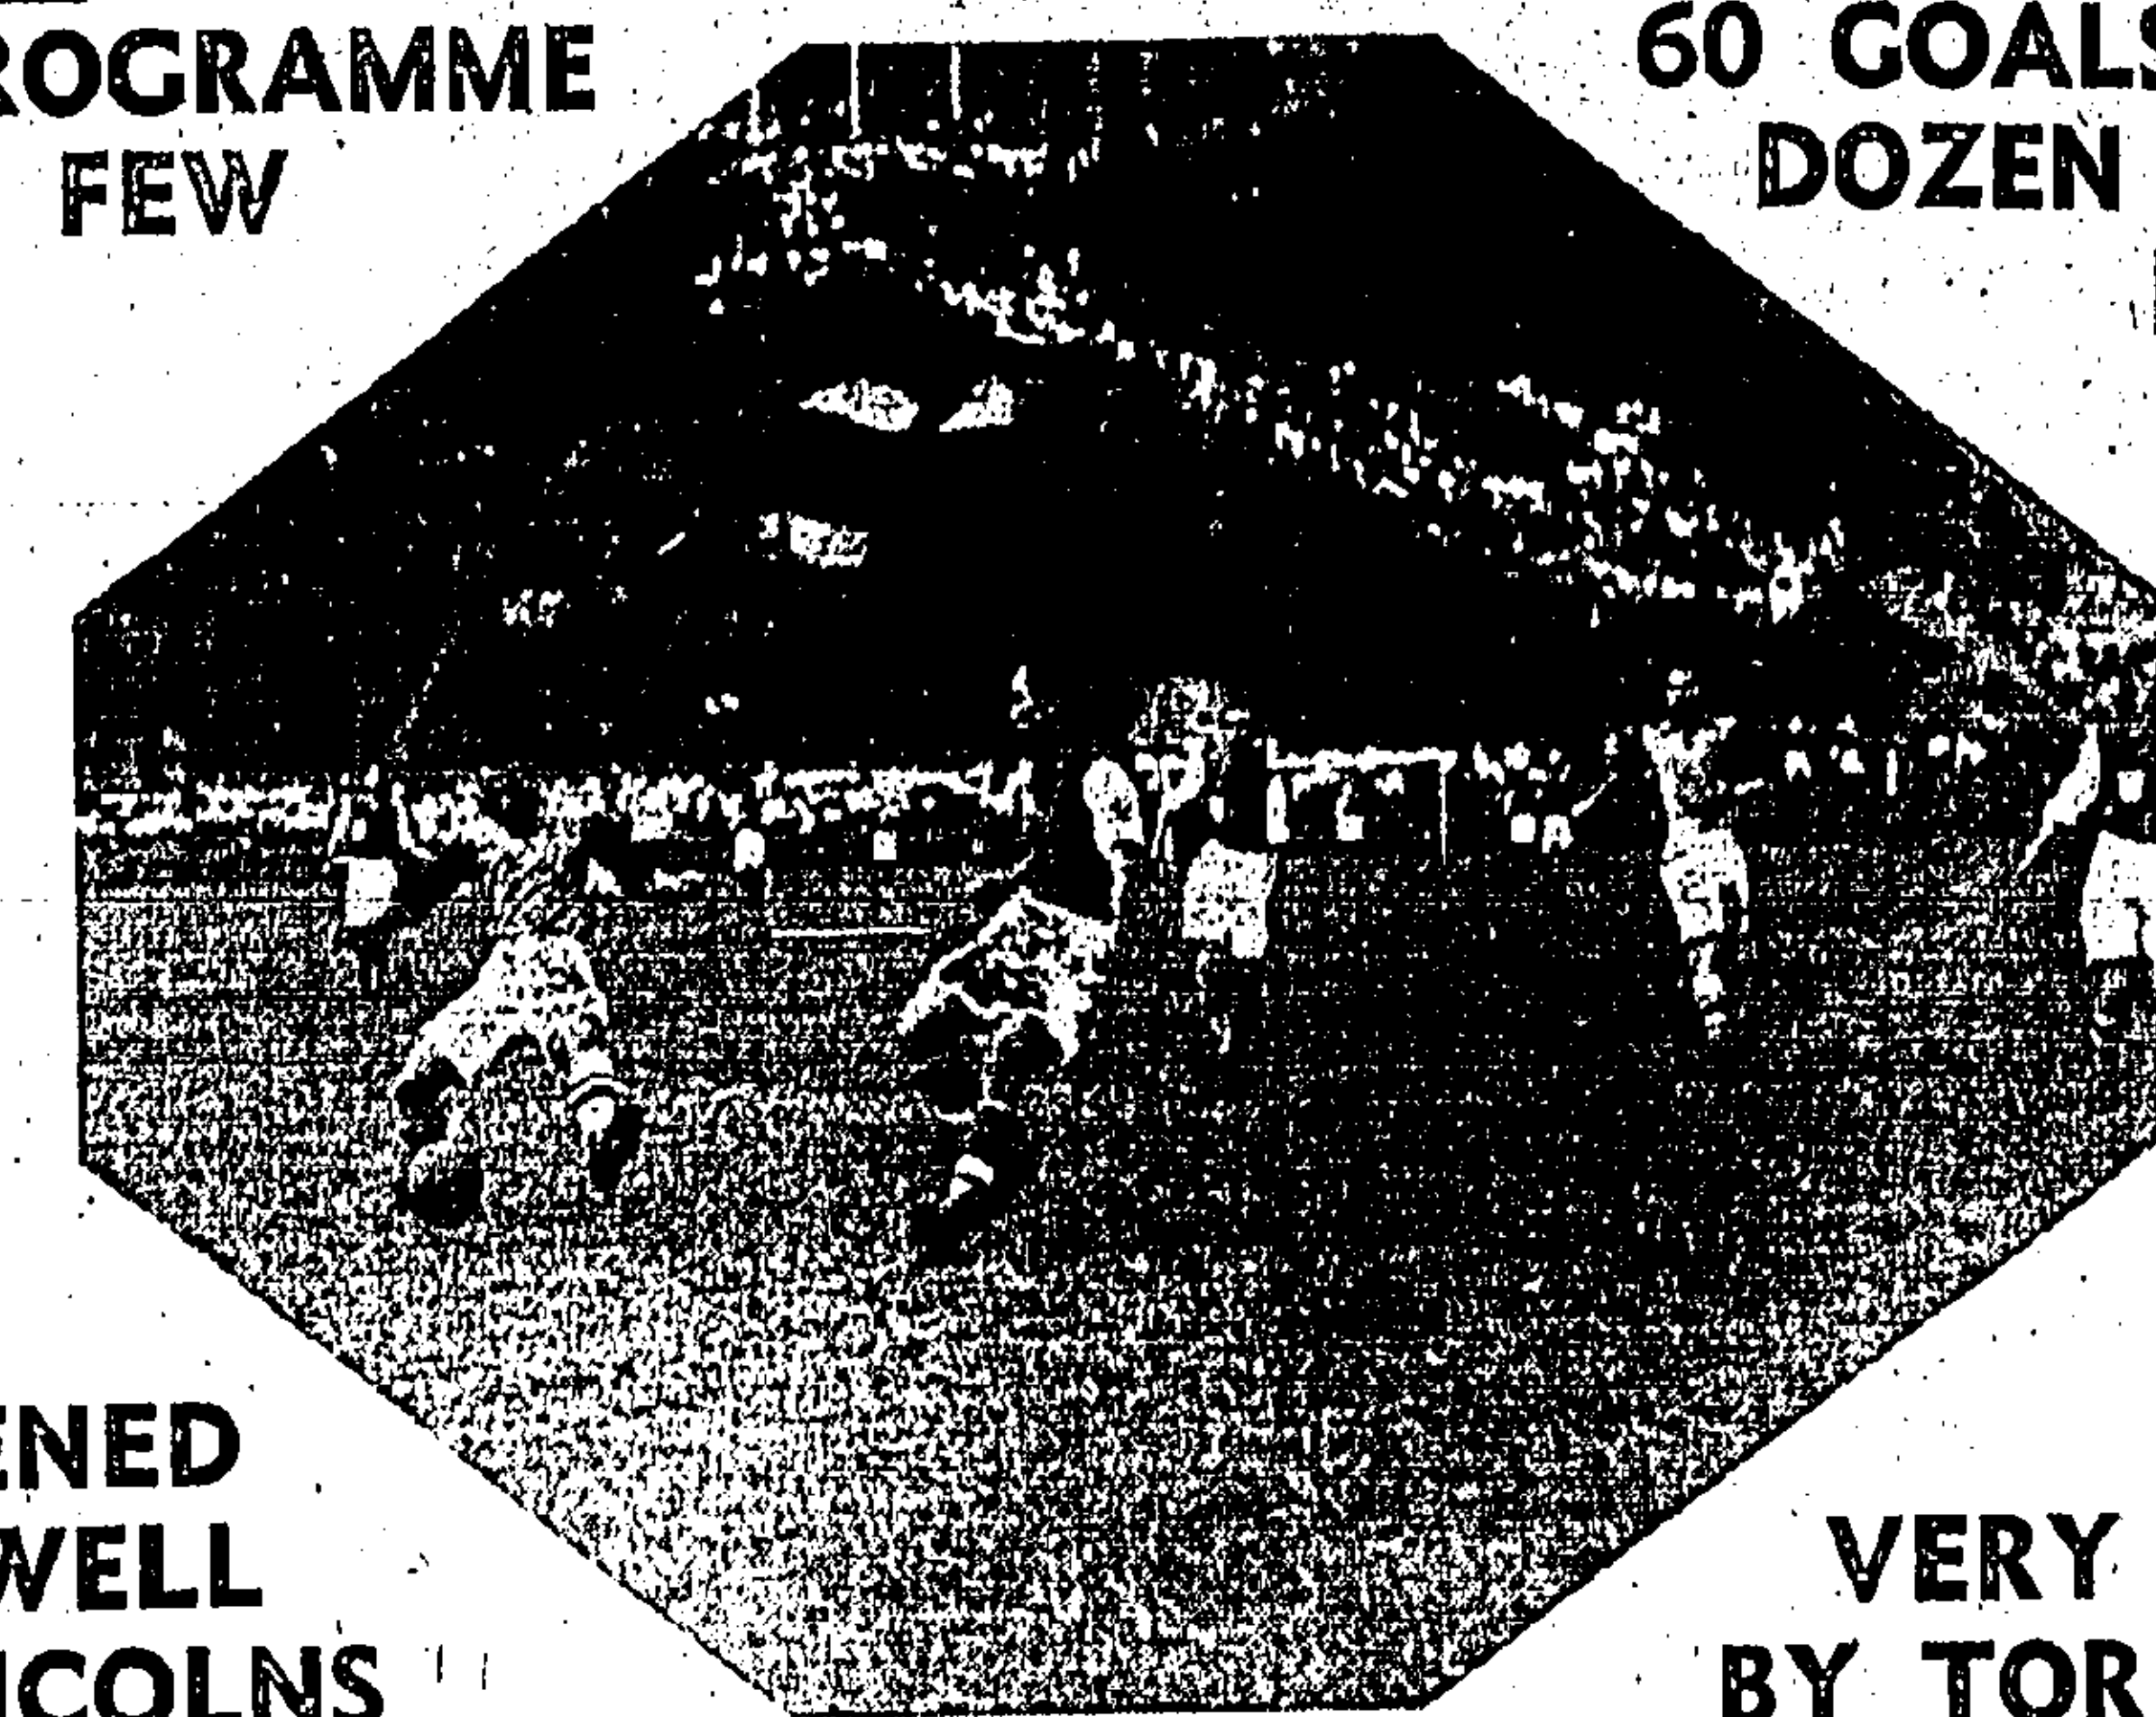

For the first time for many a long day Lau Mau and Li Tin-sang were positive menaces and puzzled by an inside trio of brainy footballers. Supported by a half back line, who had learnt well the lessons and value of intelligent ball distribution, this trio constantly threatened danger. The essential difference between them and Pau Ka-ping and Co., was the latter's more decisive finishing work. It was this which determined the result. Judged by the territorial play and other factors the Athletic might have reason to complain of the result. But there was this distinguishing feature between the teams. The odds on the champions scoring were certainly greater than those of the Athletic.

A comparison of the defences leaves a slight margin in favour of Lau Mau and Li Tin-sang, for they covered better than Tung Kwong-wing and Wong Ping. In consequence Wong Wing, the South China custodian had less worries than his vis-a-vis, Li Kwok-ki. The possibility of his having to have a shot from five yards range was definitely less than Li's.

There were occasions when the Athletic defence were strung out in most disorderly fashion; it never happened with the South China rearguard.

Intermediates Show Their Worth

HARD LUCK KOWLOON

DEFENCES ON TOP IN KEEN CONTEST

(By "Wanderer.")

Kowloon 0, Lincolns 1

If this match had ended as a goalless draw, as it seemed certain to do until two minutes from the end, the result would have been fairer.

The Lincolns were the better all-round team, but the dashing raids of Kowloon in the first half earned them the larger share of the game and in the second half Kowloon's defence held out so stubbornly under steady pressure that they were most unfortunate to lose by a fluke goal on the stroke of time.

Cord, who played a brilliant game in the Kowloon goal, had saved a host of better efforts by the Lincolns, but when a long swinging centre bounced from the top of the cross-bar on to Ridley's head he had no chance from a range of a few feet.

POOR SHOOTING.

Both sides were guilty of poor shooting, partly due, no doubt, to the resourcefulness of the rival defences, which took the form of swift determined tackling giving the forwards little chance of standing up.

Hill was outstanding for Kowloon, keeping the Ridley-Hoquaard wing well in check, while Bliss and Jones were solid in the half-back line. Forward, the two wingers did much good work, but the inside men lacked cohesion and individual efforts broke down quickly.

It was much the same with the Lincolns. The defence was much more impressive than the attack, giving nothing away. Kowloon were seldom given opportunity for a clear shot at goal, though Heath did excellently to get back in time to save one first-timer from Blake after the goalkeeper had left his charge.

mer making things very much easier for Wong Mee-shun and Leung Shui-yick.

Able Substitute for Fung King-cheung

Although the genius of Fung King-cheung's leadership was noticeable in the forward line, Pau Ka-ping proved a first rate substitute. He showed a partiality in swinging the ball out to the left wing, quite a natural tendency with a player whose right foot is stronger than his left, and he was went to crowd on Tam.

But his appreciation of the duties of a centre-forward was satisfactorily displayed and with him on whom to call, South China need have no fear of any disorganisation of the forward line in the absence of Fung King-cheung.

CLUB STRIKE NEW NOTE

FORWARDS DISPLAY INITIATIVE AGAINST ROYAL ARTILLERY

(By "Veritas").

Individual opportunism gave the Club three of the four goals which led to their triumph over the Royal Artillery in the opening league match of the season.

It was a game of contrasts, with hard endeavour rather than skill playing a notable part. The Artillery were never more decisively beaten all last season than on Saturday. This, I aver, in spite of the balance of loss being against them.

The Club exposed and mercilessly exploited the Gunners' weak link, the forward line. The attack was reduced to impotency in the first ten minutes and remained in complete subjugation thereafter. It disorganised the whole team. The defence, with additional work imposed, held out manfully in the first half, but cracked in the closing stages and were in danger of being overrun when the "all clear" whistle was given.

Honest to Goodness Football

The Club were impressive. There was a liveliness and wholeheartedness about the players which spoke of success in the first few minutes. Co-ordination admittedly was constantly lacking and the forwards neglected to work to a plan.

But real eagerness to get the ball first and willingness to guide it in the direction of goal by the shortest route possible were new and welcome features. It was honest-to-goodness, spritely sort of football, poor of fills, but decisive and match winning.

The development of a plan of attack; attention to positional play and to one or two other factors affecting individuals, and the Club quintet will constitute themselves into an attack to be feared as much as any other in the Colony.

There was nothing radically wrong with the defence. There was the same old weakness in ball distribution by the half backs. Not so pronounced of course as on other occasions because for the most part they were on top of the Artillery forwards and therefore had more leisure in which to serve the winners.

But there was a lot of unnecessarily hasty kicking after a successful tackle with the ball consequently going astray of its objective. This fundamental weakness can, and should be, quickly rectified.

Who Shared The Honours

Individually the honours of the match were shared by Fogwill, who despite lameness, played a remarkably sound game in goal, and in addition to a penalty, twice saved brilliantly. Desmond Hynes, who, unless he allows rugby to claim his attention, will assuredly challenge comparison with any other right back in the Colony before the season is through. L. G. Robertson, brought in at the last minute owing to Wright's inability to play, was exceptionally praiseworthy. He overshadowed his colleagues, not only bottling up Seal on the Artillery left wing, but serving Dominy and Fowler with a regular supply of through passes.

Up forward the Club left wing—Strange and Blekford—were early prominent, but subsequently gave place to the right wing, where Dominy and Fowler frequently penetrated the Artillery defence.

Fowler has made great strides during the past twelve months. On Saturday he revealed himself an opportunist and a player with plenty of courage. He had his shortcomings, chief among them being over-eagerness which led him time and again to run into an offside position. He must curb this inclination to get in front of the backs.

Blekford was clever, but Strange crowded on him too much. This flank will have to open out. Strange worked like a Trojan, nevertheless a little attention to positional tactics will not only save him a tremendous amount of labour, but will prove beneficial in other respects.

Howe spent most of the afternoon waiting for the right pass to come through. He was rather too passive, but did shake himself together in the second half and only exceptionally smart saves by Comby prevented him from netting twice.

Vain Efforts By Pardoe

BUFFALO'S SMART RECOVERY

Level In Little World Series

New York, Oct. 1.
A very smart recovery on the part of Buffalo has sent the Little World Series the full distance and with the teams on level terms with three wins each, there is the one vital match to play.

To-day Buffalo levelled up with Columbus by winning the sixth match seven runs to four. Yesterday they won 7-5 after Columbus had won three games.—Reuter.

TOM MAIN IS PLEASED

WITH DEFEAT OF HIS TEAM

THE REASON WHY

It is seldom you find somebody really happy in being beaten, but Tommy Main, the skipper of the Shanghai Interport lawn bowls team is that person.

He told members of the Kowloon Bowling Green so on Saturday evening after his men had been licked in their second game of the Interport tour.

This will stiffen us up a little for the Interport series," he said in the tone of one who, without losing the slightest bit of confidence in his team, has managed to learn something.

After the really decisive defeat administered the visitors by E. L. Ranley and Co., many local bowlers found the display sufficiently encouraging for them to predict an easy win for Hongkong.

COUNTING THE CHICKENS

But the danger of counting one's chickens before they are hatched is just as potent here as in many other proven instances.

Personally I still consider it is doing Shanghai an injustice already to make a final verdict of their possibilities in the Interport.

To-day they will have a further opportunity of becoming acclimatised to local conditions when they meet a Taikee rink at 4.30 p.m.

Taikee will be represented by: P. T. Stanton, J. Polan, N. Drummond, R. C. Wallace (skip), Reserve—R. Keown.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

A hand usually contains only one good-lesson, but the following hand contains four—one in bidding and three in the play of the hand.

The Bidding

South, the dealer, bid one club. West overcalled with one heart. North bid two diamonds and South bid two spades. West bid three hearts, and North bid three spades.

Some South players now went to four spades. However, the better bid is four diamonds. This gives North the choice of going to four spades or five diamonds. If he goes to four spades the hand should be passed, while if he goes to five diamonds, South is justified in bidding for the small slam in diamonds.

The Play

In playing the hand at diamonds, the declarer should establish the fifth club upon which to discard his five of spades, thereby avoiding the necessity of guessing the spade finesse.

At several tables South was the declarer at four spades. When West opens the ace of hearts and continues with a heart, South must refuse to ruff the second heart because he holds only four spades and one of the opponents may also hold four.

To ruff would certainly lose the contract. By refusing to ruff the second heart all that the declarer need do is to lose a spade, and his contract is made.

At another table the singleton diamond was opened and South won with the king. The natural play to most people is to try to ruff one of the losing clubs, but this play is wrong.

You have a singleton heart, therefore you can expect to find uneven distribution in the other two hands. The lead of a diamond certainly looks like a singleton. If you ruff the third club and it is overruled by East, East will lead a diamond which will be ruffed by West. Then another club will be returned which will cause you to lose an extra spade trick.

The correct play is to lead a trump immediately to dummy's king, take the spade finesse, lead another trump and then start the diamonds. East will be forced to ruff with his good trump, and that is the only trick the declarer need lose.

PARTICULARLY MEAN THEFT

FORI ROUS COLLEAGUE OF $17.50

CORRESPONDENCE

Christmas Cards.

Sir.—In a recent issue of your paper a correspondent who signed himself "Local" wrote advising the public to think twice before ordering Christmas Cards "from the Chinese hawkers from Shanghai." He argued that these men from the North, who do not even possess "hawkers' licences" are making a good living, and come here and trade in competition with the Colony's shops, who have to pay taxes, etc.

Now, so far as I know, mine is the only Chinese concern engaged in the business, and your correspondent's letter may unjustly do us great harm.

I am not a hawker, neither, do I sell imported Christmas Cards from Shanghai. My company is the Tai Chung Wah Company, 199 Hennessy Road. At that address we have our studio and works, where we make fancy Chinese hand-painted Christmas cards and embossed hand-painted calendars. It is true that I came originally from Shanghai, but we have now been established in Hongkong for three years. Ours is therefore now a Hongkong industry. We have only a selling agency in Shanghai. We use paper imported from England, and all the work upon it is done here. Therefore we are entitled to claim the support and encouragement of the local public—perhaps even more than shops which import their cards ready made. We pay all local taxation the same as they do.

I repeat: I am not a hawker. I go around taking orders. I trust

MAN ARRESTED AT PAWNSHOP

"If I may say so, this man was arrested a month ago, but I was obliged to let him go," stated Detective-Sergeant Fowles before Mr. Schofield in the Central Police Court this morning, prosecuting Tsang Ching, 48, unemployed, for the theft of a travelling rug from the Man On Boarding House.

Defendant was caught at a pawnshop where the pawnbroker refused to take the rug into pawn, because it bore the name of the boarding house.

A fine of $50 or six weeks' hard labour was imposed.
